A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

ADVERTISEMENT.

WHILE SIR JAMES BALFOUR has been always known to those conversant with the sources of Scottish history, as an indefatigable enquirer into the ancient records of his country, and the curious chronicler of the eventful period during which he lived; it is certainly not a little remarkable, that when works of far inferior importance have been daily drawn from the "twilight of unpublished fame," that his remains, though of such general interest to the Historian, the Lawyer, the Antiquary and the Genealogist, should have been so long withheld from the curiosity of the literary world. And in the publication of these volumes, the Editor presumes to flatter himself, that he is at once discharging an act of justice to an author, who is assuredly well entitled to the grateful remembrance of his countrymen; and presenting to the public a collection of no inconsiderable value to a large class of readers.

In the performance of his immediate duties, the Editor may perhaps be allowed to claim the humble merit of accuracy: he has indeed endeavoured to render the printed text, even to the minutest details of orthography, as nearly as possible a perfect transcript of the original autograph. In one instance alone has he ventured to take any liberty with his author.

Although volumes first and second, comprise the whole of the work denominated "Annales" by Sir James, yet it was thought expedient, for the sake of uniformity, to extend the same running title to those fragments of history subsequent to the conclusion of that treatise, which occupy the third, and part of the fourth volumes. These, indeed, may be considered as forming collections for a continuation of the Annals, which the author meditated ; and if he had prosecuted this plan, they would probably have been transcribed, with little alteration, into the body of the work.

The Editor has now to express his gratitude for the encouragement and assistance he has so liberally experienced in the publication of this work. To the Faculty of Advocates in general, and to many of its Members in particular, his sincerest acknowledgments are justly due. To the Right Honourable Lord Belhaven he respectfully offers his best thanks, for the permission accorded by his Lordship to copy the original portrait of his distinguished ancestor ; and he feels the greatest obligation to Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, Esquire, who kindly procured the sketch so admirably executed by William Page, Esquire. He likewise begs leave to tender his acknowledgments to the Right Honourable the Earl of Aberdeen, for the information politely communicated in regard to certain Manuscripts of Sir James Balfour, preserved in the Library of the British Museum.

PREFATORY MEMOIR.

It is to be regretted, that there should exist no information in regard to the private life and character of SIR JAMES BALFOUR. The following sketch of his talents and literary exertions, is taken from the *Memoria Balfouriana of Sir Robert Sibbald, himself an enthusiastic labourer in the field of Scottish history, and the intimate friend and relation of Sir Andrew Balfour, in commemoration of whose services, along with those of his brother Sir James, the work was written.

“ The house of Balfour derives its name from the castle of Balfore, on the river Or, the original seat of its progenitors; a possession which, along with the shrievalty of the county of Fife, it retained for many generations.† The house is divided into several families, of which those of Balgarvy, Mount-whanne, Denmylne, Ballovy, Careston and Kirkton, are the principal. Of these branches, many of the descendants have been distinguished both for military prowess and the arts of peace.

"The family of Denmylne, to which I at present limit my attention, is descended from James, son of Sir John Balfour of Balgarvy, who obtained from King James II. in the fourteenth year of his reign, the lands of Denmylne, situated in the parish of Abdie, and county of Fife.

"This James Balfour was slain, fighting for his country, in the battle of Roxburgh, soon after the death of King James II., as appears from a charter granted by James III. in favour of his son John. John married Christian Sibbald, a daughter of Peter Sibbald of Rankilour; and inheriting his father's valour and his fate, he fell with his sovereign, James IV. in the battle of Flodden. Patrick, his son, was father of Alexander; and Alexander's son, Sir Michael, was father of the two illustrious brothers who form the subjects of the present memoir. Sir Michael,* a man equally distinguished for military bravery and civil prudence, was comptroller of the household to King Charles II.† he greatly increased his patrimonial estate; and by his wife Jane, daughter of James Durham of Pitkerrow, left, besides five sons, nine daughters, who all formed honourable alliances, except two, who died unmarried.

* Sir Michael was knighted at Holyroodhouse, 26th March, 1630, by George, Viscount Dupline, Chancellor of Scotland, under his Majesty's special warrant, and the same year in which his son, Sir James, received a similar honour.

† Nonne Charles I. ? Ed.

“ Of the sons, James, the principal subject of our present discussion, was the oldest.*

“ The second, Alexander, stiled of Lumbanie, was a Minister of the Gospel, a man not more respected for the dignity of his appearance, than for the wisdom and piety of his life.

“ The third was Michael of Randerston, eminently distinguished for his experience and skill in matters of agriculture.

“ The fourth, Sir David of Foret, was a Judge in the Supreme Courts both of Session and Justiciary.

“ The youngest of all the children was my illustrious colleague, Sir Andrew, Doctor of Medicine, of whom I propose to treat in the latter part of this memoir.†

“ I have thought it proper to enter into these details in regard to the several children of Sir Michael not only by reason of their distinguished worth, but likewise to commemorate a rare example of fertility. For I have frequently been told by the late Sir Andrew, that Sir Michael lived to see three hundred of his own issue, while Sir Andrew himself saw six hundred descendants of his father.

* In the Memoria Balfouriana, Sir Robert Sibbald mentions that Sir Andrew Balfour was born January 1630; and in his preface to the letters of that gentleman, that his education was principally conducted by his brother, Sir James, who was thirty years his senior; consequently the latter must have been born about the year 1600. ED.

† The distinguished merits of Sir Andrew Balfour as a naturalist, physician, and general scholar, are commemorated not only by Sir Robert Sibbald, both in the Memoria Balfouriana, and in his preface to Sir Andrew's letters published by him, but likewise more recently by Professor John Walker in his Essays on Natural History. ED.

“ But to return to the oldest brother, Sir James, who was Baron of Kynnaire; * his parents no sooner discovered in him the first sparks of a superior genius, than they carefully applied themselves to imbue his mind with a proper sense of piety, and with the elements of useful learning. What was his progress in literature, is abundantly manifested by the productions of his riper years; but his juvenile attainments in poetry, which was a favourite study among the scholars of that period, is recorded by our celebrated poet John Leach, (or Leochæus) in his Strenae, published in the year 1626, of which that entitled Janus is inscribed, Generoso Juveni Jacobo Balfourio Kinardio.

Hunc tu carminibus constrictum Iacobe latinis
 Coge tuis numeris, quos Musa Caledonis aptat, Et natura tibi; nam tu quoque Scotica Siren.
 Panthea nostra tua est ita cultu laeta Britanno,
 Et meliora meâ (si quid queat esse) Puellâ.

And likewise from a poem by the same author, on the Panthea of James Balfour, where he says—

Namque ut pulchra satis, minus est meâ Panthea casta; Quum non pulchra minus, et tua casta magis, it appears, that our author had successfully translated the Panthea of Leach from Latin into Scottish

* He obtained in favour of himself and spouse a royal charter of the lands and barony of Kynnaire, within the county of Fyffe, 9th January, 1631, which grant was confirmed to him by acts of parliament in 1633 and 1634. By this estate he was usually designated, especially during his father's life; and he must have possessed it (probably by a base holding) some years before the date of the royal charter, as he is stiled Kinardius in the verses addressed to him by Leach in 1626. ED.

[verse. I have likewise seen a volume containing several poems, Latin and Scots, in his own handwriting, the last of which he has subscribed with his name.

“ His academical studies were no sooner terminated, than he travelled into foreign parts, in order to observe the manners of different nations, and to cultivate the acquaintance of learned men. On his return home, he devoted himself exclusively to the study of the antiquities and history of his native country; and in this pursuit his success was wonderful. It was indeed fortunate for his progress, that several learned men had, from the commencement of the present century, begun to illustrate the history of Scotland. Of these, Robert Maule, Commissary of St Andrews, had engaged in a work concerning the origin of our nation, while David Buchanan had applied an accurate criticism to the older monuments of Scottish story. Mr David Hume of Godscroft, had undertaken to refute the objections against the high antiquity of the nation; the labours of Sir Robert Gordon of Straloch shed no inconsiderable light on the earlier history of Scotland; while Robert Johnstone detailed the transactions of British policy, in conjunction with those of France, the Netherlands, and Germany, from the year 1572 to the year 1628. Mr William Drummond of Hawthornden recorded the history of the five Jameses; Mr Guthry, the events which characterised the progress of our civil war; and Mr Wishart (afterwards Bishop of Edinburgh) commemorated the actions of the celebrated Marquis of Montrose. The geographical delineation of the kingdom had been greatly advanced by the labours of Timothy Pont, son of that eminent promoter of letters, Mr Robert Pont. Sir Robert Gordon of Straloch, his son James, Minister of Rothomay, and Sir John Scot of Scotstarvet, Director of the Chancery, had likewise contributed many topographical descriptions, and sundry maps of the counties. The Right Reverend Primate, John Spotiswood, Archbishop of St Andrews, had carried down both the ecclesiastical and civil history of Scotland, from the introduction of Christianity until the death of James VI.; while the history of the Scottish Church had been detailed by David Calderwood, from the epoch of the Reformation, to the year 1625.

“ These examples roused the emulation of James Balfour, and determined him to make trial of his ability in similar pursuits. But as he was, moreover, peculiarly attached to the art of heraldry, in order to accomplish himself in that study, he resorted to London with the intention of cultivating the friendship of those learned in that science; and he obtained admission into the society of its professors, not so much through the recommendation of others, as in virtue of his own personal merit. He, however, principally attached himself to Sir William Segar, Garter King at Arms, who was at once pre-eminently distinguished among the English heralds, by the dignity of his office, and the superiority of his talents. He maintained, likewise, a literary correspondence with Mr Roger Dodsworth and Sir William Dugdale, to whom he communicated much valuable information respecting the antiquities of our country, as may be seen in the second volume of their Monasticon Anglicanum, under the title, Cœnobia Scoti- ca, where there are found many extracts made by Balfour from original documents, and by him transmitted to the editors. And from this similarity of pursuit, and this mutual love of antiquarian research, a strict friendship originated between the parties, which was continually fostered by frequent acts of reciprocal kindness. And in testimony of this great love and affection, Sir William Segar not only conciliated towards him the regard of the whole college of heralds, but likewise obtained the following remarkable encomium in his favour, which, regularly signed and sealed by all the members of that body, was inserted by them in his Album Amicorum.*

“ ‘ To all and singular, to whose knowledge this presents shall come, Greeting : S^r William Segar, S^r Richard St George, and S^r Johne Borroughe, Garter, Clarentius, and Norroy, Kings of Armes : William Penson, Lancaster ; S^r Henry St George, Richmond ; Henry Chetting, Chester ; Johne Philpote, Sommerset ; William Le Neu, Zork ; and Johne Bradshaw, Windsor, Heraulds : Sampson Leonard, Blewmantell, Thomas Thompson, Rouge-dragon ; Thomas Prestoune, Portcullis ; and George Owen, Rouge-Cross, Pursevants.

“ ‘ According to the laudable custome of nations, not to conceill that honour which is due to verteu and learning, We doe testefie and beare record, that James Balfour, Esq. by and attour his insicht and knowledge in diverse languages, hes also singular good experience and knowledge in all antiquities and " Then follow their arms, names, offices and symbols.

" Balfour's principal patron was George Hay, Earl of Kinoul, Chancellor of Scotland, through whose recommendation he was created Lyon King at Arms* by his Majesty Charles, I., who honoured him, likewise, with many other marks of his favour,† and employed his services in various important matters of public concernment. So long, indeed, as the royal interest predominated, he was a frequent attender of the court; but during the civil war, as he inclined to the party of the King*, and was consequently regarded with an unfavourable eye by the hostile faction, he withdrew from the tumult of contention, and wholly devoted his leisure to the prosecution of his favourite studies, either in the retirement of Falkland, or at his own estate of Kynnauld. The office of Lyon King at Arms, he discharged for many years with the greatest reputation, until he was at length deprived of that dignity on the usurpation of Cromwell.

During his retirement in the country, he collected many manuscripts on the art of heraldry; and composed, in the vulgar language, several original treatises on that subject, some of which are now preserved in the Advocates' Library, some are in possession of friends to whom they were given, while others were dispersed or destroyed by the English in the capture of Perth, to which town he had caused them to be conveyed. I shall enumerate the titles of those which have come to my knowledge.

“ His original treatises are as follows :

1. A Treatise of Surnames in general, but especially of those in Scotland.
2. A Treatise of the Order of the Thistle.
3. An Account of the Ceremonies used at the Coronation of King Charles I. at Holyrood-house.
4. The Ceremonies used at the Coronation of K. Charles II. at Scone, printed with the Sermon at the Coronation, preached by Mr Robert Douglas, Minister of the Gospel at Edinburgh.
5. An Account of the Coats of Armes born by the Nobility and Gentry of Scotland.

* He was, however, a staunch presbyterian; as is seen from his letters and his memorials. ED.

6. Scotorum Procerum Genealogia.

The Genealogie of all the Earles of Scotland from their creation, down to 1647.

7. An Account of the Funerall Ceremonies of some Noble Persons.

8. An Account of these who were Knighted when he was Lyon.

9. An Account of the Impressas, Divisos, and Mottos of several of our Kings and Queens.

10. The Crests, Devices, and Mottos, of the the Scots Nobility.

11. Injunctions by Sir James Balfour of Kinaird, Knight, Lyon King at Armes, (according to the direction of the Act of Parliament, made thereament) to be observed by all the Officers at Armes.

12. Corrections of several Coats not right Blazoned, and Blasings of several Coats by him.

13. The Genealogies of several Families.

14. An Account of the Coronations of Emperours and Kings, especially of Alexander III. James VI. Charles I. and II. Kings of Scotland.

15. A Treatise of the Scots and English Surnames, in several Volumes.

16. A Treatise of the Science of Heraldry.

“The manuscripts which he collected on the art of heraldry, whether in Latin or the vulgar languages, are the following.”

(List of forty manuscripts omitted.)

“He principally, however, applied himself to the illustration of our Scottish history; and as he well knew that history could only be improved by resorting immediately to its sources, he was satisfied that here a genuine knowledge of preceding ages was only to be acquired by the consultation and comparison of ancient authors, and the accurate investigation of the charters and public registers of the kingdom, in conjunction with the archives of the monasteries and cathedral churches. He, accordingly, devoted himself with all diligence to the discovery of the monastic chartularies and chronicles; and, through the liberality of those in whose custody they were preserved, he was able to form a very large collection of these documents: and while it is greatly to be lamented that the greater number of these originals, having fallen into ignorant and sacrilegious hands, have unfortunately perished; we ought to rejoice that even a small proportion should have been preserved by the tardy interposition of those who entertained a proper sense of their importance. Like the genius of their age, indeed, the style of the monks was rude and semi-barbarous; but they were neither destitute of industry, of sagacity, nor of the love of truth. From the epoch of the erection of monasteries in this kingdom, they constitute the surest guides in matters of literature, and almost the only attentive and well-informed witnesses of cotemporary occurrences, as in the different cloisters one or other of the body was always appointed to the special office of recording the memory of passing events.

“Posterity ought, therefore, to be deeply grateful to Sir James Balfour for the labour and expense which he lavished in the collection and preservation of these manuscripts, which, during his whole life, he continued to accumulate, not so much for his individual utility, as for the common benefit of literary men. Many of these originals are, indeed, no longer to be found, having been either lost in the sack of Perth by the English, or dispersed among his friends to whom they had been either lent or given."

(List of 56 ancient, and 22 modern historical manuscripts omitted.)

"After the suppression of the monasteries, the most important documents for the evidence of our history are found in the public records of the kingdom, and in the transactions of the various ministers of government in the conduct of foreign and domestic policy of the state. Sir James, therefore, collected for his historical apparatus, as many of these documents as he was able to procure."

(Omitted a list of 26 manuscripts regarding the various relations of the kingdom—of 42 on subjects of legal interest—of 29 theological—of 11 poetical—of 2 philosophical—of 13 medical—of 3 historical, and of 4 miscellaneous manuscripts.)

"With unwearied industry, and at great expense, he collected a voluminous library, stored with the most choice books in every department of literature; but more especially rich in works illustrative of the history, the antiquities, and the heraldry of Scotland. Scottish history, indeed, he proposed as the principal object of his study, and with this intent he accumulated all that bore any subsidiary relation to this his favourite pursuit. And to the more perfect accomplishment of this purpose, he instituted a literary correspondence with those of his cotemporaries who were eminent either as historians or historical antiquarians,—Robert Maule, Henry Maule of Melgum, David Buchanan, Sir Robert Gordon of Straloch, Mr Roger Dodsworth, Sir William Dugdale, and William Drummond of Hawthornden, a man whom he admired for the elegance of his genius, and with whom he was connected in an intimate friendship during the whole period of his life.* And as considerable light is often thrown on the darkness of former ages by ancient coins, rings, collars, bracelets, seals and other reliques of the older time, he carefully collected and arranged, as an appendix to his library, every precious fragment of this ancient furniture; and as the Romans had been long settled in this northern part of Britain, and besides some civil edifices, with inscriptions, had established many barriers and camps to secure the province against the incursions of the Scots and Picts, he diligently employed himself in the discovery of these antiquities, some of which he has described in his Adversaria.

“ His principal endeavour was, however, to supply the deficiencies, and to correct the errors of our Scottish historians. With this intent he therefore carefully noted, from original manuscripts, the proper names, the titles, and the offices of those who, by their actions, had acquired historical celebrity, and, at the same time, the dates and circumstances of the events themselves. Nor did he omit the mention of any transaction of comparative importance, although he might not record it in a copious and sustained narrative, but only abruptly, and in paragraphs; and on this account he did not apply the name of History to his works, but only styled them

* His correspondence preserved in the Advocates' Library, exhibit the names of many other men distinguished for their talent and their rank, as Sir Robert Cotton, the Earl of Stirling, Sir Archibald Aitcheson, Mr Thomas Craufurd, the Earl of London, the Earl of Kinnoul, &c. &c. Ed.

Annals, and the greater number are in fact nothing but collections towards the composition of a proper history. For the end which he proposed was not to exhibit a full and perfect representation of our Scottish history, but simply to supply what was wanting, and to reflect a light on its obscurer passages. Animated also with the desire of vindicating from oblivion the memory of illustrious persons, he undertook various journeys through the different counties of Scotland; and of all the cathedrals and principal parish churches, he carefully examined the cemeteries and monuments, that he might copy the more remarkable epitaphs they presented. The result of these researches was a book of Epitaphs and Inscriptions thus collected.

“ At the request likewise of Sir John Scot of Scotsstarvet, he contributed not a little to the geographical illustration of this kingdom.

“ Timothy Pont, a young man of considerable talent, had, on foot, travelled over the whole surface, both of the mainland and islands of the kingdom; and was the first who, from his personal observation, had constructed maps and descriptions of its several districts. A sudden death arrested him, when preparing these for publication. Sir John Scot of Scotsstarvet had given these surveys to Sir Robert Gordon of Straloch, to be corrected and improved; and the latter had not merely obviated many errors and supplied many deficiencies, but had even added maps and chorographical delineations of several districts. Sir James Balfour likewise drew up an accurate description of the shire of Fife, of which he was a native, and with every part of which he was familiarly acquainted, including observations on the different monuments of antiquity, and the genealogies of its illustrious families. Nay he had begun to compose in Scots, a geographical description of the whole kingdom, and his common-place books contain many notices with regard to the several shires;—a work with which the Dutch geographer, Mr Bleau, was so highly pleased, that in the Theatrum Scotiae, published by him, he dedicated to Sir James the map of Lorn, appending to it likewise an engraving of his arms. But in order to cultivate to the utmost of his ability that peculiar province to which he was especially appointed, by his office of Lyon King at Arms, and that he might advance the system of Scottish heraldry to its highest perfection; he not only diligently examined the public records, the charters and patents of the nobility, but likewise every indication afforded by escutheons and sepulchres, by houses, temples, palaces and towers. Of the works which he has left, many sufficiently testify the care, fidelity and judgment with which he discharged this duty. The manuscript treatises written by him on these subjects, and in the vernacular tongue, are the following:—

1. A Treatise of Nobility.
2. The Devises, Impresses and Mottos of the Kings of Scotland, from K. John Baliol, to K. James VI.
3. A Treatise concerning Burials and Interments, with a Collection of the Epitaphs of our Kings, Queens, Nobles, and Famous Men.
4. A Treatise containing the Crists, Devices, and Mottos of our Scots Nobility.

5. A Treatise de jure Prelationis Nobilium Scotiae, or ane Memorial of the Patents and Rights, produced by sundry Earls and Lords before the Commissioners, deputed by the Kings Majesty anent the Precedency and Priority of Dignities, amongst them in Parliament, and Council, together with a short Minut of certain Rights extant in the Registers, concerning the samen, which were not produced before the saids Lords, in Anno 1606.

“ Moreover on the adolescence of the Prince of Wales, who was stiled likewise the Stewart or Seneschal of Scotland, and when the formation of his court was in contemplation, he deemed it proper to inquire into the amount of the revenue to which the hereditary Princes of Scotland were entitled, either by the liberality of the monarch, by the laws of the realm, or in any other way; and what likewise were the privileges which accrued to them in right of their illustrious birth. Among his manuscripts he left one, of which the title is “The True present State of the Principality of Scotland, with the Means, how the same may be most conveniently Increased, and Augmented; with which is joyned, Ane Survey, and brief Note from the Publick Registers of the Kingdom of certain Infeftments and Confirmations given to Princes of Scotland, and by them to their Vassals, of diversse Baronies and Lands of the Principalitie, since the 15 year of the Reign of King Robert III. Collected by him with great pains.”

“ His great diligence in illustrating the history of our nation, is apparent from the numerous manuscripts which he left ; for independently of the extensive collection of printed historians which his library contained, and besides the historical manuscripts already mentioned, he likewise inspected either personally, or by deputy, every document of any moment which was then known to exist throughout the kingdom, and obtained for his use a transcript or abridgement of its contents. And from the historical monuments preserved in England, he made various extracts, either in his own hand-writing, or by the assistance of others ; and he also formed an index of the manuscripts there extant relative to the affairs of Scotland. And in forming his collections preparatory to the original treatises which he wrote on Scottish history, he extracted every thing of consequence from all previous historians, whether printed or in manuscript. He has thus left several abridgements of the Books of Scone, Kambuskeneth and others ; and extracts from the histories of John Major, Hector Boethius, John Lesly and Buchanan. All these he disposed both in his great and smaller chronological work, and in his Annals according to the order of time, inserting moreover the principal events which occurred throughout the world.

“ In the vulgar language, he composed a history of the Scottish Kings, from Fergus I. to Charles I., brief indeed, but embracing the events more especially worthy of attention : he seems likewise to have proposed to write more detailed Annals of our Kings, commencing with the reign of James I. and terminating with the accession of Charles II. ; and appears to have even completed those of James I. and II. For he has added to the Annals of these two reigns, a prefatory dedication to the estates of the kingdom met in parliament, in which he mentions that he presents to them short "Annals of the life and reign of James I. and II. wherein, as in a mirror, they might see the vicissitude of human affairs, the downfall of great persons, the punishment of vice, and the cherishing of virtuous and worthy actions."

"He also wrote Memorials of the reigns of James III. James IV. James V. and Mary; but treated at greater length, the reign of James VI.

"His other historical works are the following:—

1. Some short Memorials and Passages, of the year MDCXLIX. And of the second Triennial Parliament, begun, and holden at Edinburgh, January 4 that year, till the 5 of July, 1650.

2. Short Memoirs and Passages of State, fra the 5 of July MDCL, to the 26 of November that year.

3. Short Memoirs and Passages of State, fra the 26 of November MDCL, to the 13 of March, MDCLI.

4. Short Memoirs and Passages of State, fra the 13 of March, MDCLI, to the first of January, MDCLIII.

5. Short Memoirs and Remarkable Passages for the Years 1653 and 1654.

6. The Annals of Scotland, (in two volumes.)

The first Volume extends from the accession of Malcolm III. to the death of King James VI.; and the second volume, from the accession of Charles I. to the sixteenth year of his reign.

7. An Account of the Officers of State, (in two volumes.)

8. Ane Account of the Monastery's, Abbay's, Priory's and Religious Houses in Scotland, of their Orders and Founders.

9. Operis Chronologici tomus prior, rerum per universum orbem gestarum seriem, brevè què ab anno 330. ante Salvatoris nostri D. Jesu Christi, adventum ad annum usque 1567, complectens narrationem; Auctore Jacobo Balfourio Kynardio Milite Leone Armorum, in Regno Scotiæ, Rege.

10. Geographical and Historical Remarks, upon the several Counties, and Shires, and upon the Isles, belonging to Scotland, with an account of the Floods, and of the Rocks, Dangers, Shelves and Sands, of the Roads, Creeks, and Bays round about the Realm of Scotland.

11. A full Description of the Shire of Fyfe.

12. A List of the Bishops and Arch-Bishops of Saint Andrews, frae the Year 872, till the Death of Cardinal Beaton.

“He likewise cultivated natural history; and in Scots, he composed an alphabetical treatise on gems, including their description, names, virtues and places where they are discovered. He collected also, from various authors, an account of the frauds practised in the imitation of precious stones;—a treatise which he composed in Latin.

“He possessed many friends; George, Earl of Kinoul, a man adorned with every virtue; Sir Robert Aytoun, Secretary to Queen Anne, distinguished as a poet and eloquent writer; George and David Sibbald, his kinsmen, the former, Doctor of Medicine, and a very learned man, the latter, Keeper of the Great Seal under the Earl of Kinoul; and finally, William Drummond of Hawthornden, the celebrated poet and historian. The friendship between our author and these illustrious men was founded on a common love of letters, on a conformity of dispositions, and on a mutual desire of benefiting and adorning their country by the preservation of its historical and literary treasures."—Mem. Balf. p. 1—46.

The following notices are taken from a Manuscript Common-place Book in Sir Robert Sibbald's hand-writing, and these are said to have been copied from an entry in a "pocket-book written by Sir James himself."

"Sir Michel Balfour of Denmill, my father, married Dam Jean Durhame, my mother, who departed this life at Denmill, the 8 of November, 1640; and on the 17 day was interred in Ebdie church. My father, Sir Michel, died 4 day of Feb: 1652, and was interred beside his wife, 20 day of the same month.

"Sir James Balfour had for his first lady, Anna Aiton, sister to Sir John Aiton of that ilk, in Fifeshire, the 21 of October, 1630. She died at Falkland, 26 of August, 1644. She bore Michel, who died young at Edinburgh; and John, who also died young, and a 3d son, Michell, who also died young. She left behind her also six daughters, Margaret, Jean, Elizabeth, Barbara, Anna and Elizabeth, who died all unmarried.

"Sir James had to his second wife Jean Durham, eldest daughter to the Laird of Pittarow and Lufnes, and his mother's brother. This Jean was widow of Mr James Smitoun, son to Sir John Smitoun of Stevinstoun. She died 19 July, 1645.

"Sir James [had to] his 3d wife Margaret Arnot, onlie daughter of Sir James Arnot of Ferney; by her he had James and Michel, who died young, and Robert, who was borne in March 1652.

“ Daughters Elizabeth and Jean, who died young, and Helen.

“ Sir James had to his 4th wife, Janet Auchinlek, daughter to Sir William Auchinlek of Bahmano, and Janet Bruce, his spouse, daughter to Sir Robert Bruce of Clackmanon; and had with her two daughters, Janet and Catherin.”

Sir James died in February, 1657.*

In the same year, Sir Robert Balfour was retoured heir to Sir James, his father, in the lands of Kynnaird, and to his grandfather, Sir Michael, in the barony of Denmylne.† The family is believed to be now extinct in the male line; but it is represented by the Right Honourable Lord Belhaven, as heir of line.

TESTIMONIALS IN REGARD TO SIR JAMES BALFOUR, FROM BISHOP NICOLSON'S SCOTS HISTORICAL LIBRARY.

“ This excellent person, (Sir James Balfour) of whom we shall have occasion to say more hereafter, was Lyon in Charles the First's tyme; and one of the happiest collectors and preservers of the Seotish antiquities that ever lived.”—(p. 17.)

cated to Sir James Balfour. ‘ All that gives authority to the conjecture of H. Maul’s being the compiler of this Pictish History, is the following copy of verses prefixed.

“ Through the blind labyrinth of life’s meanders,
To guide our steps a thread a story renders ;
It is the chiefest treasure—house of wit,
A shop wherein we may but danger sit ;
And our estate as in a glass behold,
Matching the present with the times of old, &c.”

“ This poem is design’d to my much honour’d and very worthy friend, Sir James Balfour, Lyon King of Arms ; and subscrib’d, Henry Maul of Melgum. He has certainly written the Genealogy of the Right Honourable family of Panmure, whereof he was a branch. But whether this be his work, or Sir James’s, commended only by him, is uncertain. The handwriting (of that in the Lawyer’s Library, which seems to be the original) is not Sir James’s own hand.”—(p. 23.)

“ We have already seen, that a monk of Scone was one of the chief continuers of Fordun ; and I have had the perusal of an abstract which Sir James Balfour made of this black book, and he professes that all those notes were taken ex Libro Manuscripto magni Mackulloche ; which sufficiently shews that he knew it to be all one with the Scoto-Chronicon.—(p. 33.)

“ Sir James Balfour (who was contemporary with this Drummond of Hawthornden, and his intimate acquaintance) wrote also the history of the two first James’s, which he dedicates to the Lords and Estates of Parliament. This he was pleased to call—

The short Annals of the Reigns and Lives of James the First and Second, two famous and worthy Princes ; wherein, as in a mirrour, they may see the vicissitude of humane affairs, the downfall of great persons, the punishment of vice, and the cherishing of virtuous and worthy actions. The stile here is more copious and smooth than in Drummond's, and the history more full. It's probable Sir James saw what was done by his friend, and endeavoured to supply what he thought was omitted by him.—(p. 55.)

“ The monasteries of Scotland have had far less care taken of their histories and records than those in England. Sir William Dugdale could procure no more than the endowment charters of a few of 'em, communicated to him by Sir James Balfour, who has left behind him a small treatise of his own composition, which he was pleas'd to call Monasticon Scoticum ; tho' it looks more like an index to such a performance, than the complete work itself.”—(p. 77.)

This tragedey acted, the haill arney incontinent dislodges, and brings the King prissoner with them to Edinbrughe castle, and comitts him to the custodey of Johne, Earle of Athole. The Englishe army non opposing them, marche almost to Edinbrughe. The Scotts army being betuix them and the toune, they begin to treat of ane peace with the Englishe, and so, one the second day of Aguste, they send the Duckes of Glocester and Albaney commissioners to treat with them of peace, viz. the Archbischope of St. Andrewes, the Bis: of Dunkelden, Coline, Earle of Argyle, and Androw Steuart, Lord Auendaill, Lord Chancellor of Scotland. At last, after some small difficulties, peace was concludit on thesse conditions: 1. That the Kings brother, the Ducke of Albaney, should be restored. 2d. That Dumbar castle, with the counties of Mar and Marche, should be given to him. 3d. As also that he should be the Kings Leiuetenant of the realme. 4. and lastly, That the toune of Edinbrughe should obleige themselves for repayment of that money K. James had borrouid from K. Ednard, quill that Prince James marriage was in treatting betuix them. So depairts the Englishe army; and in ther marche homewardest takes Beruick, after the Scotts had possessed it 21 zeires by compositione, Sr Patrick Hepburne of Hailles being capitane thereof, 23 day of Agust, this same zeire, 1482.

This same zeire, Alexander, Duck of Albaney and the Chancellor gouerning all the realme, he, accompanied with diuers of the nobility, goes to Streueling to visit the Queine and Prince; and after his returne he layes seidge to Edinbrughe castle, and at last takes it, and setts the King, with suche seruants as attendit him, at liberty: bot the Chancellor, Argyle, and Archbischope of St. Andrewes, hering thesse newes, depairted eache to his auen cuntry, grateumly dismayed.

This zeire, also, the Archbischope of St. Andrewes, fearing some mischeiffe, did woluntarley reseinge his sea for that of Murray; and Andrew Steuarte, the Kings wnckell, was created Archbischope of St Andrewes, and solely consecrat.

The King, thus liberat by his brother, is so in loue to him, that now one table, zea one bed, must suffice them both; wich did not long so continew.

Touards the end of this zeire, ciuill discords did againe burst furth betuix the King and his nobility, with neglecte of republicke and gouernment; quherone did arrysse thifts, depredations, and oppressions of the comons.

In the zeire 1483, from Charles the 8, the Frenche King, came Bernard Steuarte, Lord Aubigney, Marishall of France, and Peitter Mallart, a doctor of the ciuill and canon law, to K. James, to renew the ancient leauge and amitey betuix bothe realmes, wich was accordit, and by the suorne and subscriued the 22 day of Marche.

The Frenche ambassadors hauing thus effectuat ther bussines, takes with them 18 companies of Scotts foote, wnder the command of Donald Robertsone, ane expert and walliant commander, one quho had purchessed muche renoune wnder the Frenche King, in the warrs of Italey.

This zeire, K. Charles the 8 sends Bernard, Lord Aubigney, with ane armye to England, to the aide of Henrey, Earle of Richmond, aganist Richard, the wsurper, quhom they killed at the batall of Bosworthe, and Henrey wes crouned King; for wich gude seruice K. Henrey euer therafter loued and honored the Scotts. This hapened in A^o 1486.

This zeire, new hearte burninges and discords burst furth betuix the King and his brother, the Duck of Albaney, quhom the nobilitey parties.

The King fearing the nobilitey all the rest of this zeire, in effecte keeps himselue closse in Edinbrughe castle; and his brother, the Duck of Albaney, returns to France, quher he is kyndly welcomed by K. Charles the 8, the Frenche King.

The keipers of Dumbar castle, at the Duck of Albaneyes command, rander it in the handes of the Englishe, quho kept it some few zeires therafter.

The 23 of Februarij, this zeire, the K. calls a parl: of his estaits, to be haldin at Edinbrughe; quherin diuers actes past anent bulzeon, goldsmiths worke, and the craying doune of the new plakkes.

This zeire, in Nouember, Alexander, Duck of Albaney, depairts this lyffe, by the strocke of a splinter of ane lance which strocke him in the face, he beholding a tornament betuix the Duck of Orleans and ane other knight, leuing issew behind him, 2 sone: Alexander, his eldest sone, gottin one the Earle of Orknayes daughter, his first wyffe; and Johne, Duck of Albaney, his only sone of his 2d marriage, Gouvernor of Scotland during the minority of K. Ja: 5. Alexander, his eldest sone, was Bischope of Murray, and Abbot of Scone.

This zeire ther was grate famine in Scotland, and 3 moones appeired in the firmament, about 2 in the afternoone; the 25 of September this same zeire also, with much fryre, thunder and raine, for 3 quhole dayes thereafter.

This zeire, 1485, after the death of Johnne Moce-nigi, Duck of Venice, Marke Barbarico wes elected in his place; his coronatione was performed with grate solemitey.

1486.

In this zeire, 1486, wes King Richard, of England, killed by Henrey, Earle of Richmond, (as I have hertofoer wrettin,) the 22 of September.

Henrey, Earle of Richmond, this zeire, being crowned King of England, by the name of K. Henrey the 7, immediatly sent his ambassadors to Scotland, to K. James, the principall of quhom was Richard Fox, Bischope of Excester, quho concludit a septenniall peace betuix the tuo kingdomes; assuring K. James, in his masters name priuatly, that he wold during his lyffe tyme obserue and keepe a perpetuall peace with the Scotts croune, and wold renew the same eurey 7 zeires; wich leauge coming to the knowledge of the nobility and gentrey, incenssed them aboue all measure aganist the King, as if he had concludit the most vniust peace that could be imagined.

This zeire, K. Ja: hauing peace with England, betakis him to a priuat miserable lyffe, unworthey of a King, and by all possible meins giues himselue ouer to be counselled by fellows of basse conditione, and to gather money, wich procurid the implacable hattred of his nobility; so that the Earls of Angus, Argyle, Lennox, with the Lords Hailles, Home, Dromond, Lyle, Gray, and diuers more, conspyre aganist him, (since they saw no appeirance of amendiment in him, bot to grow daylie worsse and worsse,) and leuies a grate army, making Prince James, a zouth of 16 zeires of age, ther leader aganist his father and souerainge, in A^o 1487.

This zeire, the Franche and Englishe Kinges, by ther ambassadors, labor in vaine to mediate a peace and reconceillement betuix the King and his nobility; they sueare and protest neuer to lay doune armes, wnles the King will reseing the gouvernement to the Prince his sone; and with bitter reproches lyes to his charge, all the mischeiues the kingdome hes beine redacted too, and that alenerly by his misgouvernement.

The 1 of October this same zeire, K. Ja: calls a parliament, at Edinbrughe; quherin wer enacted maney lawes anent the office and deutey of shriffs, crouners, and inferior judges; aganist delinquents, and such as refusse obedience to the lawes of the land; as also that all actions be perseued befor the Judge Ordinar. In this same parl: also, in respecte of the forfaultrey of Alexander, Duck of Albaney, Earle of Marche, Mar and Garioche, Lord of Anandaile and Manne, the said lands and lordschipes are annexed to the croune.

In the begining of this zeire, 1488, the noblitley deall with the Earle of Douglas, now a shorne mounke in Londors abey, quherin he was as in a prisson, (by the King condemid during lyffe) to cast off his coull, and come out of his cell, and joyne with them to suppressse so wicked and insolent a King (as they called him,) and they wold againe restore him to all his former dignities and reuenewes; bot he being brokin with age, and weiry of the world, denayed ther sute, and exhorted them to peace and concord, bot one no tearmes wold aney more tray his auen hard fortune.

K. James then seimg no way to pacifie his enraged subiects, now vpe in armes aganist him, all in a furey marches from Streueling, contrair the adwyssse of thesse with him, till that the Earle of Huntley should haue come vpe with his forces. So accompanied with the Duck of Montrois, the Earles of Glencairne, Athole and Menteith, with the Lordes Ruthuen, Boyde and Maxswoll, quher they ran-counter the adversse partey at a willage, within 2 myles of Streuelin, called Banockburne; betuix quhom ther was a creuell batell, the 11 day of Junij this zeire, 1488, quherin K. James the 3d was killed, in the 29 zeire of his rainge. After the batell, his bodey was caried to the monastarey of Cambuskeneth hard bay.

The Prince his sone, befor the batell, commandit that non should put violent hand one the King his father; zet was he inhumanly killed by some treacherous willanes, his enimpies, in Bannockburne mill, quher he had fled for shelter.

The Popes Legat, in his iorney to Scotland, this zeire, to doe his endeuore to reconcile K. James and his subiects, by the way hering of the batell and Kinges death, stayes in England.

A. James, the Fourth of that Name,

K. OF SCOTLAND.

PRINCE James, about the 16 zeir of his age, his father being killed, as a formerly shew, wes solemnly crowned at Kelso or Calcow abbey, in A° 1488.

Imediatly after the Kings coronatione, this same zeire, a conspiracey of some malecontents bursts furthe aganist the Kings persone; the ring leaders quherof was the Earle of Lennox and Lord Lyle, quho betooke them to armes, bot wer ouerthrowen in a conflicte, neir Touche, in Streuelin shyre; maney being killed, and maney of such that wer takin prissoners, wer presently hanged; amongst wich was the Laird of Kilcreuche, chieffe of the Galbraithes.

The King calls a parliament, this same zeire, at Edinbrugh, the 6 of October, quherin the King pardones all thesse that partied his father, and grants the wardes to the minors of them that wer killed at that wnhapey batell of Bannockburne; as also hes generall reuocatione, bearing dait at Scone, this same zeire, is by the 3 estaits ratified and confirmed; that new gold be coyned of the fynnes of the Rosse noble, and that siluer be coyned of the fynnes of the old Englishe groate; as also, that quhatsomeuer clerck purchases aney benifice at the Courte of Rome, the presentatione quherof belongs to the King, comitts lesse maiestie aganist the Kings persone, and that proscriptione, rebellione and tressone, be execut vpon them.

In the begining of this zeire, 1499, the King calls a parliament of his estaits at Perth, quherin, by ane acte, the slaughter of the Kings father, K. James the 3d, is layed one himselue and his eiuell counsellers, and the present King and his adherents liberat of the same ; of wich particular acte all forraine princes, allayeis of this croune, by ambassadors are aduertissed offe, namely, the Pope, Emperour, Kings of France, Spaine and Denmarke, for clering the aspersione fame had blundered both King and kingdome with, of paricide and killing of ther King.

In this same parl: of the 15 of Febrnarij, lykwayes, it wes enacted, that the King and his counsell, by his authoritey, should make all persons and parties within his realme, to be at frindschipe and concord ; anent new money to be coyned, and the pryce of the wnce of the same, diuers statutes wer enacted ; as also, that the free tenants that holds of the Prince, Duck of Rothesay, and Steuarte of Scotland, shall be haldin to compeire in the parliament and justice aires, with ther suttes and presences, ay, and quhill the King haue a sone that should be immediat betuix the King and them, to anssuer for them in the said parliament ; and lykwayes it was statute, that the Kings maiestie, once a zeire, (health seruing) should visit eache pairt of his realme ; and all noblemen, and wthers bearing publick office, gaue a solemne othe, eache of them, to administer justice deuilie within his auen jurisdictione, see the Kings peace keipt, and malefactors put to trayell and executione.

Immediatly after the parliament, this same zeire, the King, by his proclamatioun, recalls all pensions giuen to quhatsoever persone by his father, to the diminutione of his reuenew.

The King, this same zeire, lykwayes, takes especial caire for the good educatione of hes tuo young brothers, Alexander, Duck of Ross, and Jhone, Earle of Mar, and that the superplus of ther reuenew might zeirlye accres to them; for ther father, befor his death, had endewed with riche patrimonies.

In the begining of this zeire, 1490, King James, by adwyse of hes counsaill, sends diuers noblemen ambassadors to France, Spaine and Denmarke, for renewing the ancient leages and alliances betuix thesse crounes and this. The Archbischope of Glasgow wes sent to France; the Earle Bothuell to Spaine; and Sr James Ogiluey of Airlie, knight, to Denmarke; quho did so brauly carey himselue ther, and with suche dexteritey and wisdom performed his bussines, to the Kinges heigh contentment; so that for his good seruice, at hes returne, he was created Lord Ogiluey.

1491.

This zeire the King, in the begining of Maij, 1491, makes choise of a selecte number of the nobility and gentrey to be of his priney counsaill, and did solemley promisse to doe nothing in the gouvernement without ther counsell and adwisse.

A grate contrauersey arrosse in Junij this zeire, betuix the Archbisshopes of St. Andrewes and Glasgow, anent the auctoritey and exercisse of ther functions, wich made a grate rent; each of them drawing a grate maney of the nobility to partey them: bot the King wysley did repress ther insolencey, and commandit them, wnder the paine of treassone, to submitt all ther contrawersies to the decision of the canon law; so was the buisnes betuix thesse ambitious pralats, for this tyme, packt vpe.

This same zeire the King calls a parliament at Edinbrughe, the 18 day of Maij; the first acte of wich was, the confirmatione of the alliance and confederatione with France, concludit in the former zeire; with diuers vther actes and statutes of lesse consequence, being for administratione of justies especialley.

The King all this zeire, 1492, bussies himselue, nobility, gentrey, and comons, for riging out of shipes and busches to fishe, (wich proued a grate good to this comon wealthe;) the King himselue, and most of the nobility, to encourage others, became themselves aduenturers. So that all this Kings raigne, and his sones lykwayes, the fishing so in-creased, that by that pice of industrey, accompanid with peace, the stocke of the kingdome was tribled, and all degrees of peopel gratumley enriched; till the cormorant Hollander, learning from ws in the range of Queine Marey to feede one our bread, hath so dexterously handled the bussines, and growen to such perfectione in this trade, that now a dayes, by this only meine, they are become mightey, riche, and opulent, zea formidable to the quhole world, and no good neighbour to Scotland, quence they first had the sinnees of all ther. gratness.

This zeire, 1493, the King calls a parliament, to be haldin at Edinbrughe, the 26 day of Junij, quherin, amongst other quholosome lawes, the eldest sons of barrons and gentlemen are, wnder a grate penaltie, ordained to studey the lawes of the land.

1494.

This zeire, Pope Alexander the 6, sent his Legat, Formaules, to Scotland, quho arriued at Edinbrughe 6 of Junij, 1494, to confort the King, quho wes become weray melancholey and pensiuie, in that he had contenanaced thesse that had killed his father. Bot the nuntio, by the pouer giuen him by the Pope, enjoynd him a pennance, wich was to weare a chyne of irone about his midle all the dayes of his lyffe, wich he did ; and by his apostolick poner absolued him.

This zeire, 1495, King James the 4, makes hes progresse throughe all the north pairts of Scotland ; and without respecte of persons, executtes justice one all offenders, to the grate quyett of the realme, and easse of the subiecte ; he causses re-edifie such ruines as warre had formerly made in borrowes, and his auen castells ; wich he caused to be weill furnished with all necessarey prowisions and amunitione for defence.

In the begining of this zeire, 1496, the French King, Lewis the 12, seing the Englishe redey to warre one him, by his ambassadors shewes to K. James for ayde, and discouers to him ane (notable peice of apocrapha,) called Eduard, Duck of Zorke, the sone of K. Eduard the 4, quho now is said to haue escaped the butcheries of K. Richard the 3d. This masked comædian pruned a notabell counterfait, and wrought much trouble to K. Henrey the 7. He was forged, and so sett out one the publick stage, by Margaret, Duchesse of Burgundy, sister to King Eduard the 4, a subtile and politick woman ; and so is this mushrome Ducke of Zorke sent by Lewes, the Frenche King, to Scotland ; he craues aide aganist King Henrey the 7, and calls him ane vsurper, a traitor and intruder.

This zeire, 1497, the counterfait Duck of Zorke, Richard, is married to the Earle of Huntlies daughter, and getts a good army of Scotts for his aide ; they invade the Englishe border.

K. Henrey prepares a grate army to invade Scotland, this zeire, wnder the commande of the Earles of Surrey and Northumberland, bot no blood was spilt one ather syde. Ferdinand, K. of Spaine, by his ambassador, Don Petro Hiela, mediats a peace betuix the Scotts and Englishe Kinges ; and how soun he fand the Scotts Kinges pulsse, with possible diligence he adwertisses K. Henrey to haiste ane ambassador of hes auen to the Scotts King, quho might realley enter in a trettey one some solide groundes.

In the begining of this zeire, 1498, K. Henrey the 7, of England, sent Richard Fox, Bischope of Dunelme, to joyne with the Spanishe ambassador, instructed with werey ample comissione to treat of peace, and in his name to conclude it. They wer mett by the Scotts' comissioners at Melros abbey, one the border. Ther first demand is, that the counterfeit Duck of Zorke, by them named Perkin Werbecke, that had so troubled the quyeit of England, should be deliuered in K. Henreyes hands; wich K. James all to gider refusses to doe such ane acte, so dishonorable and præjudiciall to his honor: alwayes, by the wisdom of Fox, the peace is concluded; and the King promisses fairly to dismissee him, and heirafter hold him for quhat indeid he was. At last, this zeire, he departed Scotland to Flanders, (wich was hes sanctuarey) ther to be better instructed by Margarett, the Dutchesse of Burgundy, and learne hou to acte the nixt scheme; from quhence sho sendes him ouer to Walles, to tray ther credulity; bot finding the Welshe faith lyke ther leeikes and tostit cheisse, by them he is deliuered to be a sacrafisse in K. Henreyes handes; quho, after he hed exposed him to publick scorne, being led with a halter about his necke, and a paper hate on his head, through London, he was at last condemned to turne the spitts in K. Henreies kitchin.

The Ladey Cathrin Gordon, quho was married to Richard, the conterfait Duck of Zorke, was, after her husbands apprehensione and disgrace, sent by K. Henrey to his Queine; quho, for her excellent beutey, much esteemed her, and for her birth honored her. Sho was, by the Queine and courte, named the Whyte Rose. Sho liued in England all her dayes, weill and plentifully, by the munifence of K. Henrey and hes Queine.

This zeire, 1499, some broyles did arrysse in the borders betuix the Scotts and Englishe, anent the seidge formerly layed to Norhame castle; bot by the wisdom of Richard, Bischope of Dunelme, quho wreat to K. James, and showed the castell was his, and quhat wrong was done to ainey of his subiects, it should be repaired at his maiesties anen arbitrimēt; desyring the King not to esteime aney thing was done a breache of peace, or by the knowledge or approbatione of K. Henrey, bot onlie a foolishe insolence of the stipendiarey shouldiours wich quartered one the border.

In the letter end of Februarij, this zeire, K. James comes to Melrosse abbey; and with 8 dayes thereafter, ther comes lykewayes Richard, Bischope of Dunelme, in A° 1500, betuix quhome all bussines wer amicablely composed; and at the Bischopes departur, K. James whispers him softlie in the eare, that the only way to England to haue ane perpetuall and lasting peace with Scotland, was to moue K. Henrey to giue his eldest daughter, the Lady Marga-rett, to him in marriage. The wysse prelat desyres the King to keipe himselue closse, and he wold with all speid tray K. Henreys mynd; wich with all convenient diligence he did. Finding K. Henrey to relishe that motione extremly weill, directs a priuey post to King James, and intreats him without aney delay, to haist his ambassadors to K. Henrey, for the iron was hotte, and best it was to stricke the same.

K. James, aduertissed by the Bischopes secrett posts, sends Robert Blackader, Archbischope of Glasgou, and Adam Hepburne, Earle of Bothuell, Lord Hailles, his ambassadors to England, to treat of the marriage betuix him and the Ladey Margarett, eldest daughter to K. Henrey the 7; and to that effecte, a saue conducte, wnder the broad seall of England, is presently sent to the Wardens of the Borders, to be deliuered to the Scotts ambassadors, in Aguste, 1501.

The 25 day of Januarij this zeire, 1502, K. James ambassadors finish the tretty of the marriage, and solemley marey the Ladey Margarett of England, as the Kings procurators, in Pauls church of London, wich therafter was solemley published, with grate ioy and triumphe at Pauls crosse this same day, to the grate joy and contentment of K. Henrey and the Ladey his daughter.

The King calls a parliament to meitt at Edinbrughe, the 11 day of Marche this zeire, 1503; quherin it is ordained, that ther should be a daylie counsell or judicature, to sitt at Edinbrughe, to de-ceid ciuill matters and complaintes, and shall haue the samen pouer as the Lordes of Sessione. Queine Margarette is couwayed by the Earles of Surrey and Northumberland, then Wardens of the Englishe Marches, attendit by maney of the Englishe nobility and ladeyes to Bernick, and from thence to Lambert churche, in Lameroure, quher the King mett her, and receaued her with grate ioy from the tuo Earles. From thence they went the first night to Dalkeith, and nixt to Edinbrughe, quher, with grate triumphes, the marriage was solemley accomplished; and the Scotts and Englishe nobility feasted togider, with mutuall shoues of loue and amitey, for the space of 14 dayes. From the first propositione of this marriage, to the nou accomplishment therof, wer almost 3 quohall zeires.

Thesse marriage triumphes endit, the most pairt of the Englishe lordes, ladeyes, and knights, returned home, with grate commendatione of ther royall and magnifq: wssage and intertainment in Scotland; K. James suffering none of them to depairt without some token of his fauor and loue. This happy marriage brought with it a continuall peace betuix Scotland and England all K. Henrie 7. dayes.

That acte called the Acte of Recognitione, bred a grate sture and hatred this zeire, 1505, in the hartes of all sortes of people aganist the King; wich he wysly perceaning, made the executione of the same to ceasse and take no effecte during the remander of his rainge. Bot the conceaued furey and spleene was wented aganist thesse counsellors quho had adwyssed the King to the making and executinng so vniuste and rigide a law, as thesse tymes named it.

This zeire, 1506, the King in persone holdes justice courtes in diuersse pairts of the kingdome; quherin, to the grate ioy and contentment of his people, he showes maney actes of a prudent King and a wysse justiciar, without partialitey: among wich, the Laird of Thornton, for murthering his wyffe, had his head struke from his bodey, by the stroake of ane axe, at Edinbrughe crosse.

The 10 of Agust this same zeire, a fearfull comett appeired in Scotland. Its coursse was obserued to be from the northe to the southe, with a suite and violent motione.

Sr Antony Darcey (therafter named Monseur de la Bauty) cam this zeire from France, through England, to Scotland, to tray his walog in armes, quherof he much bosted offe. Betuix him and the Lord Hamiltone, (a most gallant man at armes as aney thesse tymes had,) wer diuers notoble rancounters, without aney certaine victorèy to either; only the Lord Hamiltone, one day, at Falkland, was judged to haue the honor; wich La Bautey did impute to hes auen indispositione of bodey that day.

He dissuads the Regent, Queine mother and ther adherents, as they tendred the weill of the Catholic religione, and his hollines blissing, nowayes to condescend to the marriage with England. And the Patriarche, after hes returne to Italey, informes the Pope and quholl colledge of Cardinalls, of the singular good will and humanitey of the Scotts, as also of ther affectione to the Roman churche.

This same zeire, lykwayes, King Henrey the 8

The grate ordinance from the castell walles so plauged the Englishe, that they wer forced to list ther seidge and remoue. They sett the tounne a fyre at ther departur, wich burns for 4 dayes; then doe they fyre the touns of Leith and Mucelbrughe. The Regent hauing raissed ane army, persawes them at the heilles; the foote he forces to ther shipes, and the horssemen to Beruick, with the losse of 220, and some prissoners.

he to his grate shame and ignominey was disappointed; and the Englishe, that by his treacherey had for a good number entred, wer turned out headlonges.

This zeire, also, the Ilanders and Heighlanders raised some broyles; bot by the caire and industrey of the Earles of Huntley and Argyle, they wer reduced to ther obedience. The ringleiders hauing, by the hand of justice, lost ther heads, made the cuntry to enioy domestiq: peace.

The Earle of Angus did so gallantly and valiantley behaue himselue in this batell, that all suspitione of hes fanoring the Englishe was quyte extingusshed.

K. Henrey of England, this same zeire, againe sends a pouerfull armye to invade Scotland, wnder the command of the Earle of Harteford, quho enters the Scotts borders, and burns Kelso; bot beinng opposed by the Regent, with his Frenche shoul-diours, returns without more doinng to England. The Regent calls wpe ther reire soundlie, and sells them Kelso at a werey deire raite; makes ane inrode als fare as Tyne in England, and returns laden with spoyle, and leanes the Frenche regiments in garisone one the borders.

The Frenche K. this same zeir, honors with his anen order of St. Michell, the Regent, the Earles of Angus, Huntley and Argyle, and by the King of Armes of the order, does solemley invest them with the robes and collar of the same, at the palace of Holyrudhouse.

About this tyme, the capitane of Dunbrittone castle, quho had all this quhyle kept the same for the banisht Earle of Lannox, randers the same in the Regents hands, quho wssed the capitane honorablie.

The Regent restors the Bischope of Cathnes, Lannoxs brother, to his bischopricke, being put from that he enioyed in England.

The Scotts in the west, makes defection from the Englishe frindschipe, after the randring of Dunbrittone castle to the Regent; and K. Henrey the 8, (that inhumane tyrant) causes hanning ther hostages at Carleill, wick acte of his made the Lord Maxwell, Lochinwar and Jhonstone, with fyre and suord, invade the west borders of England, and from thence to returne with a full hand.

In Marche, this same zeire, Master George Witcharte was burned for professione of the gospel, by Cardinall Bettone at St. Andrewes.

The 3d of the kalends of Junij, this zeire, 1546, David Bettone, the proud Cardinall and Archbischope of St. Andrewes, is stabeld in his auen castle at St. Andrewes, by Norman Lesley, sone to George, Earle of Rothes, Jhone Lesley his wnickell, William Kirkealdehy of Grainge, and ther complices. They wer shortley therafter declared traitors. They keepe St. Andrews castle, and the Regent beseidges it in waine; the Cardinalls killers being aided by K. Henrey of England.

This zeire, Johne, Abbot of Pasley, is by his brother, the Regent, made Archbischope of St. Andrewes; and the abbey of Aberbrothe takin from James Betton, the Cardinalls cusin, in quhosse fauors in the former zeire he had demitted the same; and the said abbey was ginen to George Douglas, basse sone to the Earle of Angus.

The 8 of the kalends of Februarij, this zaire, 1547, deyces Henrey the 8 of England; and to him succeides his sone Eduard, about the age of 9 zeires. During his minoritay, by his fathers testament, his wnickell Symer, Earle of Somersett, was left, and now declared, protector of his presone and realmes.

The second of Appryle, this zeire, Francis, the first of that name, King of France, departes this lyffe; and to him succedeis his sone Henrey, quho immediatley after his accesse to the croune, sends Monseur D'Osell, his ambassador to Scotland, for renewing the ancient league betuix the tuo crouns, wich he performed.

George, Earle of Rothes, hauing this zeire returned from Denmarke, is challenged for airt and pairt, at least accessorey to the death of David Bettone the Cardinall; and his cleired of the same by ane assyse of his peeires.

This zeire, the Lord Regent raises a gude armye, and invades the west borders of England; beseidges the castle of Langvpe, takes it, and leuells it with the ground; and returns home with a grate buttey.

Peiter Strozzi, Prior of Capua, is this zeire sent by the Frenche King with 16 gallayes to Scotland; he arriues at St. Andrewes, and enters the toun, in despyte of all the oppositione thesse of the castle could make. The Regent now blocks vpe the castle both by sea and land; and shortly thereafter hes it randed to him, one conditione to haue ther liues saued, if so it should pleis the Frenche King: so that one the 5 day of Aguste, the castle being randered, the Prior of Capua shippes himselue, and with him 15 prissoners for France, with the best of all the moueables of the castle.

This zeir, also, the protector of England, the Duck of Somerset, with a grate armye invads Scotland both by sea and land ; quherwpone the Scotts Regent putts out the fyrrie crosse, and lewies a reasonable armye, accordinng to the shortnes of the tyme. Both armyes rancounter neir Mussilbrughe, quher maney one both sydes wer killed. At last the Englishe, by the multitude of ther men, and the trecherey of the Earle of Huntley, had the wictorey, wich they bassley and insolentley wssed ; for they killed the Masters of Buchan, Erskyne and Grhame, (quho had randred themselues one quarter promised) in cold blod. In this batell, comonley called Pinkey, the Scotts lost 8000 men of all sortes ; amongst wich ware the eldest sones (then called the Masters) off Fleiming, Ogiluey, Liuingstone, Ruthuen, Auendaill, Methuen and Rosse, with old Lochinwar ; and neire 1000 prissoners taken, amongst quhome wer ther the Earle of Huntley, Lord Chanceler of the realme, and the Lord Zestart. Bot the Regent, imediatley befor the batell, by the counsell of the Earles of Angus, Argyle, Rother and Cassiles, sends the zounge Queine, with her mother, with charge, as they will be ansuerable vpone all heighest pane, to be sauelie kept by the Lords Erskyne and Leuingstone, in the Ile of Inchmahome. From the place of the batell, the Englishe armye marches to Leithe, bot heirinng that the Lord Regent was gathring a new armye, they fyre some thatche housses in Leithe, (wich was im-mediatley extinguished) and depairt; and in ther returne home take Home castle, and regaine the castell of Roxbrughe, in such sorte that it was fensable.

This same zeire, also, the Englishe nauey, by sea, take the castell of Brughtay, at the mouthe of the riuer Tay, neire the toune of Dundie, and lewes a garissone of 300 shouldiours in it, wnder the command of Androw Dudley.

The Englishe make incursions one the west borders of Scotland, and are beattin, with the losse of ther best men, by the Lairdes of Cockpule and Jhonstone, wnder the command of the Lord Maxwell; ther gratest bootie being sore skins.

This zeire, the Regente calls a convention of the estaits at Streuelinge, quherin it was resolued wnanimously to craue the ayde of France; wich resolution of the estaits moued the Queine mother and Monseur D'Osell, earnestly to sollicit that the younge Queine might be sent ouer to France, quher shoe could not choysse bot be saue wnder the protectione of so good a frind as was the Frenche King. This adwice, as most conducing for the good of the Scotts comonwealthe, is ratified in parliament, and ambassadors chossen to goe to France.

Wpone the relatione of this, and the adwyce from the Queine mother and Monseur D'Osell, the Frenche King makes grate preparatione for ane army to be sent to ayde the Scotts, quherof the Protector of England beingg adwertissed, dealls with the Earle of Huntley, then a prissoner in England, that the Scotts Queine may be giuen in marriage to K. Eduard 6; bot the Earle anssuers, that he will neuere be of that mynd, that shoe should be giuen in marriage to aney wntill shoe be of perfyte age. The Protector of England had now almost suallowed in imaginatione the possesione of the kingdome of Scotland; bot God disappoynted all his counsellis, and turned the bussines ane other way, for he raised vpe intestine varrs in England aganist the Protector himselue.

This same zeir, the Englishe take Hadingtoun, and fortifie it; bot no souner hard they of the approche of the Frenche and Italian shoulidiours to cast ancor in the Fyrthe, bot they quyte Hadingtoun, and packe for England as giue chessed: bot being ashamed of ther anen paniq:feare, they retorne and victuall the toun, with full resolutione to hyde a seidge befor they quyte it.

The French arrine at Leithe, lands ther men, and are velcomed by the Regent, and conwayed to Edinbrughe. They wer 5000 olde beattin shoulidiours, Frenche, Italians and Germans.

De Dessey was generall;

Dandelot commandit the Frenche footte;

Strozzi commandit the Italians;

The Reinegrau commandit the Germans;

Dunow was generall of the ordinance.

And thir wer the commanders in cheiffe of the Frenche forces that came this zeir to the aide of Scotland against the Englishe.

The Frenche army makes haist to beseidge Had-dington, and the Regent accompanies them with 12,000 footte, and 2000 horsse; the first night they encampe at Mussilbrughe, and the nixt day in sight of the enimey. They skirmishe with the Englishe, and kill maney of them; none of the Frenche being killed of not, saue onley one capitane, Villenewfe;
thus begud the zeire of our redemptione, 1548.

The Englishe being beattin vithin the valls of Haddingtone, immediatley the army begins to make ther approches, and plants ther battries; and in three dayes makes a saultable breache in the wall:
bot the Frenchemen being more furious than wyse,
De Dessey retractes the assaulte for a tyme.

At this tyme, in a monastarey hard by, the Regent had called a convention of the estaits, quherin the perpetuall leauge with France is ratified, and the young Queine betrothed to Francis, the Dolphin of France, and ordanid to be sent thither within few mounthes; and so the Frenche ambassadors made faith for King Henrey ther master, in presence of the estaits of the realme.

This zeire, Monseur de Villagagnon, with his galleyes, sayles from Leith to Dunbrittone, quher the young Queine was ; and De Bresse hauing prowedit all thinges necessarye for her woyage, sho ships in at Dunbrittone, and lands at Brest, in Brittanie, sauely. To accompaney her, went the Lordes Erskyne and Fleiminge, to quhosse faith and caire sho was committed. Ther went also with her the Ladey Fleiminge, her aunt, with 12 zoung ladeyes, and 200 gentlemen and seruants.

The Protector, this same zeir, sends from Berwick 2000 horsse, with new supleis of ammunition to the Englishe beseidged in Hadingtone ; bot the Lord Home, being informed of ther desainge, layes ane ambuscad for them, and kills and takes aboue 1000 of them, and routts the rest.

This defeat of the Englishe horsse heighlie incenssis the Protector's wrath, so that with all speed he lenies ane grate armye by land, wnder the command of the Earle of Salisburrey, to raise the seidge of Hadingtone ; as also a grate nauy by sea, comandit by the Lord Clinton. The land armye of England marches neire the Frenche, betuix quhom ther was daylie skirmishes ; bot heiring of the neire approche of the Regent and the Earle of Argyle, with a good armye, they speidiley returne for England. Bot the Lord Clintone, ryding at anchor with his shipes, lands some 5000 men one the coste of Fyffe, to spoyle the countrey; bot befor they did much harne, they wer rancountred by the Laird of Weymes, and the Barrons of Fyffe, all weill horssed, quho road them flat doune with ther horsses; and hauing killed aboue 700 of them, forced the remnant to saue themselues by wadding in sea to the neckes, befor they could gaine ther flat bottomed boates. Hauing purched no better boutey ther than ther back full of strokes and watt skins, the good intertainment the Englishe did receaue in Fyffe at this tyme, saued it in all the progresse of this warre from aney furdur trouble.

About this same tyme, Petrus Niger and Julius de Romero, with tuo companies of Spanishe footte, left one the borders by the Earle of Salishurrey at his deperture, spoyle some pairtes of Teifidail and Lidisdail.

This zeir ther hapned a grate vprore in Edinbrughe betuix the Scotts and Frenche shouldiours, quherin the Prouest of Edinbrughe and his sone William Steuarte, wer killed. This bussines had almost giuen the enimey a faire aduantage, had not the French generall, De Dessey, caussed hang the raisers of this tumult, and presentley with his infantrey depairt the toun; and thinking to take Hadingtone by a strategeme, marches from Mussilbrughe about 11 at night, kills the Englishe centries, enters the portes and crayes victorey. The Englishe till armes, and with grate losse to the Frenche, forces them to make a foule retrait; De Dessey lamenting the losse of so braue ane opportunitiey for supplanting the Englishe, by his aen, temeritey, and laicke of mature counsaill and order in the performance of so gallant ane exploit.

The Regent sends the Laird of Carnegey ambassador to the Protector of England, to deall for the Earle of Huntleys ransome and libertey, and that hes Ladey might haue accease to him; the Protector condescendit to giue his Ladey accease, bot wold not heire of ransome or libertey, untill the warr was endit; bot he was sent from London to Morpethe with a sure gaurd, in houpe to meitt his Ladey. Bot by a stratageme, he escapet the handes of his keepers, and saneley wins the Scotts border, by tuo suifte horsses, layed for him with a gyde sent him by George Ker, and saueley arriues at Edinbrughe, and is welcomed by the Queine mother and Regent, and entered to the place of Lord Chancellor of Scotland, and Leiuutenant of Aberdeine, Bamffe and Elgyne shyres.

This zeire, also, the Scotts regane from the Englishe Home castle, after wick the Reinegraue returns to France.

About this same tyme, ther arriues at Dunbrit-tope 4 freshe regiments of shouldiours from France, with all sortes of ammunitione, and money to pay the army.

Robert Lauder of Basse, with the Frenche garrison of Dumbar castle, takes the Englishe provisione going from Berwick to Hadingtone; killes maney shouldiours, and takes the Gouvernour of Hadingtone, named Wilford, (quho had come to aide them) prissoner.

Neire this same tyme, the Frenche chesse the Englishe out of Jedbrughe, and recouer Pherneyhirst castle.

This same zeire, the Frenche invade England, and returne with 300 prissoners, and a grate buttey; and in ther retrait, they demolishe Furd castle, in England.

At this same tyme, the Englishe nauy of 25 shipes of warre, arriue in the Fyrthe, and they fortifie Inchekeith, and leaue 5 companies of shouldiours to defend it; bot the Frenche generall, De Dessey, forces the Englishe to rander it to him, and comitt themselves and haill ammunitione and baggage to his disposall, bot lyffe and armes.

Monseur de Term's, a knight of the Frenche order, arriues, this zeir, at Dunbrittone, with a 100 currassiers, 200 lances, and 1000 Frenche foote, and marches to Edinbrughe, quher he receaues orders. for his future imployment for the weill of the Scotts republick aganist the comon enimey.

In Julay, this zeire, Monseur De Dessey returns to France, and committs the command to De Term's, quho fortifies at Aberladey ; and heiring that Romero's Spanishe and Alman forces were at Col-dinghame, he aduances aganist them, fights and kills the most of them, and takes the rest prissoners. Romero, ther leader, escapes to Bervick.

Shoe moued him, lykwayes, to giue the earldome of Murray, in commendatu, to the Regents, the earledome of Rothies to Androw Lesley, that had married the Regents kinswoman, and the earldome of Morton to George Douglas sone.

During his abode ther, the Marquis of Northampton comes from K. Eduard 6, of England, to Henrey the Frenche King, to demand his daughter in marriage to K. Eduard.

The Queine mother prepares for her returne to Scotland, throughe England, (hauing receauid a saue conduct,) quher shoe is noblie and kyndlie intretted. With her K. Eduard dealls effectually for the marriage of her daughter, the young Queine of Scotland; and layes the quholl cause of the last warre one the Protector. At last shoe returns to Scotland by land, and the Earle of Huntley by sea; and no souner is sho arriued at home, bot presentley composes all differences amongst the nobility.

Bot he is told, in plaine tearmes, that the Queine, at her age of 12 zeirs, had chosen, in France, for her curators, K. Henrey the 2d, Charles, Cardinall of Lorraine, and the Ducke of Guisse; and that they had layed the haill burden of gouerniment on the Queine mother.

The Queine mother, with thesse that fauored her courses, goes to Streueling castle; and such as opposed her, and lyked the Regents gouerniment better, at this tyme dispersed lybells and invectiues aganist the gouerniment of woomen, shewing that the same was repugnant to the ancient lawes of Scotland.

They lykwayes, in this synod, make some fectles actes for reformation of ther idell bellied mounkes and adoulterous clergie, wich moned diuers churchemen at this same tyme embrace the gospell.

At this same tyme, the Queine Regent, causes summond Johnne Knox, Johnne Willocke and Johnne Douglas, with some otheres, prechears of the gospell, to compeir befor her and her counsaill, wich they doe not, and so, are declared rebells.

Fyffilie, That if the nobilitie pleased, they should slight the fortifications of Leith, and thesse aganist Dumbar castle, that wer a bulding.

Sextlie, That all Frenchmen depairt Scotland home to France within 20 dayes, excepte tuo companies of footte to keipe Inchekeithe and Dumbar castle, and they, notwithstanding, to be subiecte to the Scotts counsaill.

In all thesse artickells, they did not medele with religion, for diuers respects; bot the cheiffe was, that as zet the Scotts was not resolued wither to embrace the reformatione of England, or thate of Geneva.

The Frenche returne to France in Englishe shipes.

A parliament holdin at Edinbrugh this zeire, (no mentione of it being in printed statutes of this Queine,) quherin the acte of obliuione was made, according to the 3d artickell of the trettey. From this parliament the Earles of Mortone and Glencairne, with Secretarey Lidington, are sent ambassadors to Queine Elizabeth, to thanke her for hir aide aganiste the Frenche, and to recommend the marriage of the Earle of Arrane to her; to the last of wiche sho gaue no anssuer at all.

The nobilitie promoue, this zeire, the reformation, according to that of Geneva, established by Calwine and his associats.

The first of the mounth of December, this same zeire, deyes Francis, second of that name, King of France and of Scotland, at Orleans.

Queine Marey, now a widow after hir husband, the French Kinges death, comes to Rheimes, in Januarij, 1561, and putts off the rest of the winter ther. In the springe sho wisitts hir cousins of Guisse, and the Cardinall of Loraine.

In Maij, this zeire, James, Prior of St. Andrewes, goes to France to pacifie the Queine, wich in some sorte he performed; he was attendid ther with the Earles of Bothuell and Eglintone, with diuers others of the Scottes nobilitie.

A publicke dispute, this zeire, betnix Johne Willocke, a preacher of the gospell, and one Blacke, a Dominican friar, for 2 dayes; quherin Willocks defends the protestant tenetts as aggriable to the word of God.

Queine Marey falls seike of a feuer, in Loraine, this zeire; but recouers, and comes to Paris, and prepares for her iorney to Scotland.

Elizabeth, Queine of England, sends the Earle of Bedford ambassador to her, quho giues him with Throgmortone, the leidger then of England in France, quho dealt with her, amongst other thinges, to ratifie the trettey of Edinbrughe: wich sho putt off till her arriuall in Scotland. Shoe desyres of Q. Elizabethe free passage throughe England home to Scotland, wich is absolutlies refussed to her, wnes the forsaid trettey wer ratified and approuen.

Queine Marey shipes at Calais, the 18 of September, this zeire, and shortlie thereafter sauelie arriues at Leithe.

The Queine being sauelie landit, is welcomed by the concourse of the nobilitie from all the pairts of the realme.

D'Oysel being sent ambassadore from the Frenche Kinge to Scotland, to Queine Marey, is detained in England be Queine Elizabethe, quha, vpon a just feare of this eager Frenchemans raissinng of new sturrs againe in Scotland, as he had beine a violent instrument in the former, sho thought good to detain him a quhyle, till shoe saw quhat bussines the Queins arriuall home to Scotland wold produce, ather for or aganist the protestant partey.

The Queine calls the nobilitie to Edinbrughe. In this conventionne, no churchman was admitted; and it was ordered, that tuoching religione, nothing should be medled with, bot all thinges to remaine in that same estait they wer in, the day the Queine landit at Leith from France.

In this conventionne, or meitting of the estaits, from wich the clergie was excludit, ther was ane acte paste, lykwayes, nominating tuelffe persons to be one the Queins priuey counsaill, without quhosse adwysses should conclude no grate bussines in the staite ;

James, Duck of Castelherauld,
E. of Huntley, L. Chancellor,
E. of Argyle,

Earle of Athole,
Earle of Marishall,
Earle of Glencairne,
Earle of Morton,

1562.

In the begining of this zeire, 1562, James Steuart, Prior of St. Andrewes, is by his sister created Earle of Murray.

At wich tyme the Earles of Arrane and Bothwell wer committed to prisone.

George, Earle of Huntley, Lord Chancellor of Scotland, is killed this zeire, and his second sone beheadit, and his eldest sone sentenced lykwayes to losse the head; bot by the Queins clemencie, the rigor of that sentence was moderated to perpetuall prisone in Dumbar castle.

At this same tyme, also, the Earle of Sutherland was banisht the realme, and Johne Hamiltone, Archbischope of St. Andrewes, imprissoned; and all this was done (as the Queine herselue sett doune wnder her auen hand) by the pouer of her brother James, Earle of Murray, with the Queine, to weakin the popishe factione; ere sho knew ather his de-seinges, or quhat herselue was doinng, shoe wnedoed her best frindes, and thesse that stood most for the Popes authoritie and Romishe religione in Scotland.

Margarett, Countesse of Lennox, neice to K. Henrey the 8, by Queine Elizabeth command, was comitted prisoner to Richard Sackweill, and her husband, the Earle of Lennox, was committed to the Master of the Rolls, for alledgit intelligence with Marey the Scotts Queine.

This zeire, Queine Elizabeth sendes Henrey Sidney to Queine Marey, to delay the interweiw vntill the nixt zeire, that the Frenche warrs grew colder.

To begin this zeire, 1563, and make the same memorable, the Duck of Guisse, Queine Mareyes wnekell, is killed, quhosse death moued that, the Queins joynter out of France, was not payed; and the Duck of Chatele Roy was also deprived of his dutchey, and the Scotts wer displaced from the captaine shipe of the guard.

The Cardinall of Loraine, fearing that Queine Marey should cleine to the amitey of England, and leaue France, by Crocus, propositis to her the marriage of Charles of Austria, sone to the Emperour Ferdinand, with the countey of Tyrole for her dourie.

In the mounthe of Junij, this same zeir, Queine Marey holds her nynth parliament at Edinbrughe, quherin the acte of obliuione was ratified, and the preuillidge of thesse worthey to enioy it, was committed to

James, Duck of Castleherauld, Lord Hamilton;

James, Earle of Murray, Lord Abernethy and Strathnarne;

James, Earle of Mortone, Lord Dalkeith, Chancellor of Scotland;

Johne Erskyne of Dune, Prouest of Montrosse ; or to aney sex of them, 3 of the saides Earles and Lordes beinng allwayes 3 of the sex to make the coram.

In this parliament, lykwayes, ther past ane law, that 5 or sex of the principall barrones be called by ther commissioners befor that ather peace, warre or taxatione, wer granted ore concludit ; and in this parliament, also, the preuillidges of the royall burrowes wer ratified.

In Agust, this same zeire, lykwayes, Queine Elizabeth, by Randolphe, her ambassador, proposses againe to Marey, Queine of Scotts, the marriage of Robert Dudley, wich shoe scorned.

This zeir, 1564, Queine Elizabeth creattes Robert Dudley, Master of her Horsses, quhom, in her secret purpois, sho had appoynted husband for the Queine of Scotts; and that he might be more worthy of that mutche, shoe creattes him Lord Denbigh, and Earle of Leichester, to him and his heires maill, lawfully begottin; for quhosse saike, also, sho had befor created his eldest brother Ambrosse, Lord Lisle and Earle of Warwicke, to him and his heires mailles, lafully to be gottin, and to Robert, his brother, and to his heires mailles failling thesse of Ambrosse.

Dudley, to deserue weill of Queine Marey, quhom he suttid in marriage, accussed Bacon, Keeper of the Grate Seall to the Queine, that he had delte in the matter of succession, aganist the Queine of Scotland, and that he was priuey to Hailles pamphlet, quho endeuored to proue the right of the croune of England to belonge to the familie of Suffolk.

This zeire, Queine Marey sends for the Earle of Lennox to come to Scotland, and repealls the acte of his exyle, and restores to him landes and reuenewes; and the Queine does resolute to marrey his sone Henry, Earle Darnley.

At Bernick, in Nouember, this zeir, ther talked togidder aboute the marriage with Leicester, Murray and Lidingtone, for the Queine of Scottes, and for Queine Elizabeth, the Earle off Bedford and Randolphe, quho promissed, if that shoe wold marrey the Earle of Leicester, that sho wold declare her her daughter adoptiue, or sister, by authoritie of parliament; bot the Scotts commissioners scorned so vnæquall and basse a motion of so meine a matche to so grate a Princes.

Queine Elizabeth commands her ambassadors to doe ther vtermost endenor to promoue the marriage with Leicester, and if that could not be, zet at least to hinder that of Darnleyes.

Darnleyes marriage secretly fauored by Dudley, zea, by Queine Elizabeth herselue, as the wyssest and best sighted thought.

The 29 of Februarij, this zeire, 1565, Darnley, with much adoe, obtained leine to come to Scotland, and to stay for 3 mounthes, wnder color that he might be present at the restoring of his father, and so he cam to Edinbrughe in this mounthe; and no souner is he arriued, bot, incontinent, falls the Queine in loue with him, and presently dispatches one to Rome for a dispensatione (they being within degrees forbidin to marrey by the popische law); and Lidingetone is sent to Queine Elizabeth, to intreat her consent to marrey with Darnley.

Queine Elizabeth, after much debait with her counsell anent the Scotts ambassadors desyne, shoe sends Nicolas Throgmortone to Scotland, ambassador to Queine Marey, with all earnestnesse to wrge a present conclusion of the marriage with Leicester, thretning her to relinquishe that intendit marriage withe her cousin Darnley.

Queine Marey knights Darnley, and that same day solemley creatts him Lord of Ardmanóche, Earle of Ross, and Ducke of Rothesay; and in the 5 mounth after hes arriuell in Scotland, takes him to be her husband and companion in the kingdome: wich marriage was with grate triumphe solemnized in the abbey church of Holyrudhousse, the 29 day of July, this same zeire, one wich day, by Lyone King of Armes, he was proclaimed KING.

In the begining of the mounth of October, this zeire, Queine Elizabeth sent one Tamworthe, a gentleman of her priuey chamber, to Q. Marey, to warne her not to wiolat the peace, as also to exposulat with her for her hastie marriage with a natieue subiecte of England, and with all to desyre that Lennox and Daraley might be sent back againe wnto England, according to the leauge, and that the Earle of Murray, her brother, might be againe addmitted to her wounted fauor. Q. Marey, smelling Tamworths message, did not admitt him to her presence, bot anssuered him by artickells in wretting; and thus Tamworthe returned home (as he thought not respected, as he thought according to to his place). The reassone quhay the Queine gaue him not presence treulie was, that in some wordes wttered to some of the ministers of estait heir, he had tuoched Queine Maryes reputatione with some basse and sclanderous wordes, and had not woschaffed to giue her husband the tytill of King.

This zeire, 1566, the 9 day of Marche, Dauid Risius, ane Italiane, secretarey to the Queine for the Frenche tounge, was forcibly drauen out of the parlor quher the Queine was at supper, to ane vtter roume, and stabbed by some noblemen, animat to that homicide by the King, the Queins husband; his corpes was interred in the churchzaird of Holyrudhousse abbey. The Queine being grate with chyld, did all shoe could to haue saued his lyffe; zea, quhen strenth could not doe, shoe bitterly weipte, bot to no ende, he was so quickly dispatch-ed.

The 19 day of Junij, this same zeire, Queine Marey was brought to bed, in Edinbrughe castell, of a sone, quho was christned in the chapell royall of Streueling, the 22 of Aguste, this same zeire, by the name of Charles James ; his good fathers wer Charles the 9, the Frenche King, and Amadeus, Duck of Sauoy ; his good mother was Elizabeth, Queine of England. Immediatley after he was christned, the Lyone King of Armes proclaimed him, James, by the grace of God, Lord of Renfrow and the Isles, Earle of Carricke, Ducke of Rothsay, and Princa of Scotland.

The estaits of England, in a parliament haldin at London, this zeir, mowes Q. Elizabeth, (if shoe wold be so pleased,) to make choysse of a husband to herselue, and marrey, and to nominat and sett done the name of hir successor. Bot by no meins could shoe be drawin to ather of the tuo. Zet that it might appeir to the world quhom shoe thought to be her most rightfull successor, shoe did imprisone Thornton, the reader of the law in Lincolns Inne at London, at this same tyme, of quhome Queine Marey of Scotland had complained, that in his lecture he had called in questione, and made doubte of her right of succession.

The Earle of Bedford, the Englishe ambassador, when the Prince christning was endit, delt with Q. Marey, that thesse domesticall contentions betuix her and her husband might be forgottin; for (said he) some wicked and malicious suorne enemies to them bothe, had most craftily disioynted that suet society and coniugall band, wich once was and still aught to be betuix them. Also he delt with her, that the trettie of Edinburghe might be ratified, wich shoe altogider refused to doe, in respecte, that ther wer diuers poyntes in that trettey, that might be derogatorey to her right, and the right of her children after Q. Elizabeths death, to the succession of the Englishe croune; zet sho promised to send commissioners to England, quho should talke aboute the confirmatione therof, changing some wordes, namley, that shoe should forbear to wsse the tytill and armes of England, quhilst Q. Elizabeth liued and her children.

Vpone the 10 day of Februarij, this zeire, 1567, King Henrey, the Queins husband, was, within his auen palace of Kirkafeild, in Edinbrughe, strangled; his dead bodey cast out in a back courte; and the housse quherin he and hes seruants had beine murdered, blowin vpe with gun powder; his corpes the nixt day, without aney funerall solemitey, wer interrid in the abbey churche of Holyrudhousse. The murther of this innocent Prince was knowen to be James Hepburne, Earle of Bothuell, Lord Hailles, Grate Admirall of Scotland, by thosse that best wnderstoode how matters went aboute the courte; bot the popishe affected, that applauded the Queins wicked courses, spred a rumor, and layed the cryme one the Earles of Mortone and Murray, and ther confederatts, wich the Queine mainley labored to doe, by her ansuers to the ambassadors of forraine princes.

In the mounthe of Maij, this same zeire, Queine Marey tooke to husband, and married James Hepburne, Earle of Bothuell, quhome shoe, some few dayes præceeding, the more to honor him, and fitt him to be a matche for a Queine, and the partner of a royall bed, created, with all requisitt solemitey, Marquesse of Fyffe and Duck of Orknay.

About the 11 of Junij, this same zeire, the most pairt of the nobilitie raisse in armes aganist the Queine, for the murther of her husband, and her marriage with his murtherer, Bothuell; and with displayed baner marched aganist them to Borthwick castle, quher they then wer all that stood for her armes; and at Carberrey hill did the tuo armies rancounter, quher the Queins armey was desait and routit, and shoe herselue takin prissoner, one the 15 day of the same mounthe. Shoe was brought to Edinbrughe, and lodged in the Laird of Craigmillers housse, then prouest of the toune. From this batell fled the now Duck of Orknay, with all his company; and immediatly departed the kingdome, and neuer returned thither againe.

Vpone the 17 day of Junii, this zeire, the Queine was committed to prisone in Lochleuin castle, in Fyffe; and the Englishe ambassador, Nicolas Throgmorton, as also the Frenche ambassadors, Villeroy and Crocus, wer denayed accesse to her. Notwithstanding that all the kingdome was in effecte incensed aganist her, zet could not her subiectes condescend amongst themselves what course to take with her. Some wold haue her restored to libertiey vpon these conditions, that the murtherers of the King should be punished according to law; the Princes saffie prowdyt for, Bothwell dinorced, and religione establisht.

Others wold for euer haue her banisht wnto France or wnto England, so that the Frenche King or Englishe Queine did giue ther wordis that shoe should reseinge the kingdome, and transfer all her authoritey wnto her sone, and certaine noblemen. A thirde ther wer, of oppinione that shoe should be publickly arraigned and iudicially condemned to perpetuall prisone, and her sone crowned.

The last sorte differed from all the former, and wold haue had her deprived bothe of lyffe and kingdome, and that by a publick executione.

Queine Marey, by her letters of resignacion, contaning therein a procuratorcy, simpliciter reseings and ouer giues her croune and realme in fauors of her sone, a chyld of 18 mounthes olde, quherin sho appoynts the Earle of Murray Regent during the minoritie of her sone; wich if he refussed to accept, shoe did name gouernours for him,

James, Duck of Castleherauld;

Mathew, Earle of Lennox;

Coline, Earle of Argyle;

Johne, Earle of Athole;

James, Earle of Morton;

Alexander, Earle of Glencairne;

Johne, Earle of Marr.

Vpone the 29 day of Julay, 5 dayes after Queine Mareys resignatione of realme, her sone, Prince James, a chyld of 18 mounthes olde, was solemley crouned, at Streueling castle, Kinge; Jhone Knox made the coronatione sermon: the Hamiltons putting in a protestatione, that his coronatione should be no preiudice wnto the Duck of Chastenleroy in his right of successions aganist the familey of Lennox. Queine Elizabeth, of England, did inhibit her ambassador to assist or zet be present at the coronatione, that shoe might be thought and reputted be the worlde in no sorte to countenance or allow Q. Mareys abdicatione, by the presence of Throgmorton, her ambassador.

So ends the rainge of Queine Marey, at her sones coronation, altho sho liued 18 zeires thereafter a cap-tiue in England; and at last was execute ther, the 6 of the ids of Februarij, at Fodringhay castle, in the 46 zeire of her age, and rainge, in A° 1586.

James, Sixth of that Name,

KINGE OF SCOTLAND.

AND THERAFTER OF ENGLAND, FRANCE AND IRLAND; &c.

ONE the 29 day of Julay, in A° 1567, as said is, was K. James the 6 crowned in Streueling church, at 2 o'clocke in the afternoone; and one the second day of Agust thereafter, proclamatione was made by the heraulds at Edinbrughe crosse, of hes Maties coronatione, commanding all his subiects to liue in the feare of God, wnder his obedience.

One the 11 day of Agust, the Earle of Murray, the Regent, arriued saue at Leith from France, and in his companey a Frenche ambassador.

Lykwayes, one the 22 day of Agust, this same zeire, 1567, James, Earle of Murray, was proclaimed Regent of the realme, wntill the infant King should attain the age of 17 zeires compleit.

The 1 of September, this zeire, the Regent raises ane army, for reducing suche as wer refractarey to the Kings obedience; and this same day causes proclamations to be made, that all betuix 60 and 16 shoulde be in readines wpon the nixt warning with 20 dayes provisione.

This same day, also, the Lord Regent, by his proclamations, ordaines pices of siluer to be coyned, with the suord one the one syde of it, and one the poynt of it the Scotts crowne, with this circumscriptione, Pro me si, merior in me.

St James Balfoure of Burlie, quho all this tyme had kept Edinbrughe castle for the Queine, was forced to take quarters of the Regent, and render wpe the same in his hands; quho immediatly thereafter placed captaine in it, William Kircaldehy of Grange.

In this same mounth of September, also, Dumbarton castle, wiche kept out for the Duck of Orkney, was by the Regent reduced to the Kings obedience, and ane order immediatly giuen by the estais of the realme to demolishe it.

The Regent, in October this zeire, passes with some troupes of horsse and footte to Hawicke, (and ere they wer adwertissed of his coming, tooke and apprehendit) 34 of the most nottable thewis in all the borders, and some 15 more in Eusdail and Annandail; some of them he hanged and drounid, and others of them he brought alonge with himselue in chaines to Edinbrughe, and ther committed them to prissone.

The Regent, by proclamations, the 27 of Nouember, this zeire, inhibitts the wearing of guns and pistolls, wnder the paine of dalth, by aney subjects within the realme, the Kings gaurd onlie excepted.

The 15 of December, this zeire, to wich day the Regent calls a parliament of the estates of the kingdome to hold at Edinbrughe; at wich the Earle of Argyle did beare the suord, Huntley the scepter, and Angusse (a zouth aboute the age of 14 zeires) the croune. At this parliament, that long lastinng debait betuix the tounes of Perth and Dundie anent the 3d place of precediney amongst the burrowes, did begin. In this parliament, lykwayes, was the Earle of Murrayes regencey ratified; and James Hepburn, Duck of Orknay, Marquesse of Fyffe, Earle Bothuell and Lord Hailles, with the Laird of Ormestone, and diuers others of the Kings murderers, wer all forfaulted.

In this same mounthe of December, Robert Jacke, a merchant of Dundle, wes hangit and quartered for falls coynie, called Hard Heades, wich he had caussed coyne in Flanders, and brought home.

The Regent denayes Throgmorton and Ligneroll, the Englishe and Frenche ambassadors, of accente to the Queine, now a prisoner in Lochleuin castle, in Fyffe.

The 3d of Januarij, this seire, 1568, the Regent, the Earle of Murray, caused execut to deathe Johne of Telo, sounge, Johne Hepburne of Boktane, Paris, a Frencheman, and one Dagleishe, seruants to the Earle of Bothuell, quho tooke it one ther solame othe, at the gallows, that Bothuell had assurid them that Murray and Morton wer the authors of killing the King.

This rashe, precpitate and ouer haistey abdicatione and deprivatione of the Queine, and the ouer thurte stubornes of the Regent towards the ambassadors, in December last, both Queine Elizabeth and the French King tooke weray heighly, as a thing tending to the reproche of royall maiestie, (so was the Englishe ambassador pleassid to expresse his passion,) and begane outwardlie to fauor the Hamiltons, wiche stood for Q. Marey.

Pasquier, the Frenche ambassador in England, dealt with Queine Elizabeth that Q. Marey might be restored by force of armes; bot shoe thought it the better way to forbid the Scotts all trafefque in Frances and England, wntill shoe was deliuered; and so by that meaines the comons might be disioyned from the nobilitye and gentry, (quho, as it seimid, said shoe,) wer all wnitted in one conspiracey aganist Queine Marey.

In Marche, this zeire, the Regent held a justice courte at Glasgow, quherin wer 28 persons condemned and execut for diuers crymea.

One the 2d of Maij, this same zeir, Queine Marey made ane escape out of Lochleuin castle, by the meins of George Douglas, a zounger sone of the Laird of Lochlenins. After her escape, ther mett her the Lords Settone and Harreis, with the Archbis: of St. Andrewes, and conwayed her to Hamilton, the place of randezwous of all that partied her. The Regent being at Glasgow, with all eppeditione raisses ane army; during wich arming on both sydes, ther was a fast kept at Edinbrughe for 8 dayes; and one the 13 day of this same mounth, being Thursday, both armies mett in batell vpon Gouen-Mure, neire to a hill called Langesyde. For the Queine was Argyle and the Hamiltons, quho led the auantguard of her army. The Kings auantguard was led by the Lord Home. The Regent obtained the wictorey with the losse only of tuo men; and the Queine lost some 155. Shoe seinng herselue deprived of the day, fleies with the Master of Maxswoll, and his companey of Galloway men, quho escaped one ther fellows horses that had endured the brunt of the batell.

Immediately after the batell, thes same day, the keyes of Hamilton and Draphan castells wer deliuered to the Regent.

The 20 day of this same mounth, Queine Marey fled to Carleill, accompanied with the Lordes Fleminge, Leuringstone, and the Master of Maxswoll, and some few of her ancient domestique seruants, quho after her escape from Lochleuin had come to her.

In Junij, this zeire, the Regent, with 2000 shoulidours, goes to Biggare, and causes demolishe the castells of Skirling and Keanmure, belonging to the Lairds of Skirling and Lochinvar, being fled with the Queine to England.

In Aguste, the Regent comitts Sr James Balfour of Burlie to prisson in St. Andrewes castle, and Sr William Maitland of Lethingtone, zounger, to the castell of Edinbrughe, for the alledgit knowledge of the Kinges slaughter; bot finding them innocent, wer both shortlie therafter sett at liberty.

In this same mounthe, Sr William Steuarte, Lyone K. of Armes, was transported from Edinbrugh castle to Dunbrittone, and ther committed to closse prissone, for conspyring to take the Regents lyffe by socerey and necromancey, for wich he was put to death.

The 16 day of Agust, this zeire, the Regent held a parliament at Edinbrughe, at wich the Earle of Morton did beare the suord, Glencairne the scepter, and Mar the croune. Ther is no memorey extant of this parl: amongst the printed statutes of K. Ja: 6, nor aney mentione of it. At this parliament tyme, the tounne of Edinbrughe commandit the parliament housse, all of them being armed; and such as wer by the Regent citted to compeire befor the parl: and did not, wer forfeaulted, all of them, one Tuesday the 24 day of Aguste.

The 22 of Agust, being Sunday, Sr David Lindesay of Rathuleit, knight, was solemnly crowned Lyone K. of Armes, the Regent and most pairt of the nobillitey being present at the ceremoney.

In September, this zeire, the Regent went to Zorke, in England, the place appoynted by Queine Elisabeth, of meitting to heire quhat the commissioners of the infant King of Scotland could objecte against Queine Marey. The Scotts commissioners wer :

Ja: Earle of Murray, Regent;

Ja: Earle of Morton;

Adam, Bis: of Orknay;

Patrick, Lord Lindesay;

Rob: Commendator of Dumfermling;

Lidington, Secretarey;

Mr Ja: Mackgill, Clerck Register;

Mr Henrey Balnaiwes, and Mr John Wood, Senators of the Colledge of Justice.

The Englishe commissioners wer :

Thomas, Duck of Northfolk ;

Tho: Earle of Sussex, President of the North ;

Sr Ralphe Sadler, Knight.

Commissioners for Queine Marey wer :

Jo: Lesley, Bis: of Ross ;

Will: Lord Levingston ;

Rob: Lord Boyde ;

Gawin, Commendator of Kilning ;

Jo: Gordon ; and James Cochran.

They all of them mett one the 7 day of October ; and shew eache others ther letters of commissione. Secretarey Lidington intreated all the commissioners, both of the King and hes mother, to forbear als muche as possible could be, in such a publick judiciall way, to defame the reputations of ther once Queine, and still mother to ther Kinge, and that befor Englishe men, the professed enimmes of the Scotts nation. So after maney arguments and exagérations, pro and contra, that conference endit, after much debait, with the still keiping Queine Marey more closse a prissoner. The Regent, the Earle of Murray, insinuatting to Q. Elizabeth, that Queine Marey had deuolu'd her right of England to the Duck of Aniw, and that the transscriptione was confirmed at Rome. He lykwayes shew Queine

Elizabeth letters wrettin by Queine Mareyes auen hand, quherin shoe both charged Q. Elizabeth as that shoe had not wssed her according to promisse, and braged of her hope of aide from some other persons, &c.

This put Queine Elizabeth in grate feare; zet could shoe not coniecture from quhome this her houpe should arraysse.

The ciuill warrs so incressinng in France this zeire, that the Bischope of Rheden was sent wnto her to requyste her not to intermedle with the affairs of France; and the Duck of Alba, quho was come in the praeceiding zeire to the Netherlands, with ample comissione to extirpat and rootte out the protestant religione, had inwolu'd himselue in a laborinth of troubells: bot all thir feares that the Regent Murray put in Queine Elizabeths head, did euidently appeire therafter in the negotiations and practisses of Robertus Ridolphus, a Florentine, the Popes agent, (becausse he could not send a nuntio to England,) sent this wnder the color of a merchant, to sturre vpe the Englishe papists to practize aganiste Queine Elizabeths lyffe; as also in the offers of the Bis: of Rosse and Lidington, at Zorke, to the Duck of Northfolke, of the marriage of Queine Marey to him; so that he wold not desert her, bot embrace her cause.

In Februarij this zeire, 1569, the Earle of Murray, Regent, returnid out of England, quher he had remained since the 21 of Septamber, in the preceiding zeir. The Regent hauing layed a sure fundatione for the young King with Queine Elizabeth, and also lulled Q. Marey asleipe with houpes of her enlargment, that he might the more easilly catche her frindes, calls a conventione of the estaits of the realme, to meitt at Edinbrughe immediatly after his returne. Amongest the first comes the Duck of Chattewleroy, and the Lord Harries; them both he catches, and committs to close prisonne in the castell of Edinbrughe.

This zeire, 1570, begins with the quenching of the Englishe rebellione; Murray, the Regent of Scotland, labored diligently that Q. Marey might be deliuered in his handes, and for that cause he both offred hostages, and to restore wnto them the Earles of Northumberland and Vestmurland, and brought the matter to suche passe, that Lesley, Bischope of Rosse, as the cheiffe incendiarey of that rebellione, was comitted a prisoner to the custody of the Bischope of London.

One the 23 of Januarij, this zeire, the Earle of Murray, the Regent, was killed in Linlithgow, with the shote of a harqubusse, from a vindow, by James Hamilton of Bothuellhanghe, quho immediatly fled out at a backsyde, and mountted 'a swift horse, wich the Hamiltons had ther waiting for him'; and so he escape, and presently shipt himselfe for France.

On the 27 of this same mounthe of Januarij, Mathew Steuarte, Earle of Lennox, was declared Regent, and James Douglas, Earle of Morton, his lieutenant; heirvpone was ther much talke of the worthy Regent laity killed, thoughe all Brittain, the most wondrous at vaine matters, namley, the dreame of his mother, of the lyons and the dragon feightning in her wombe, after that K. Ja: the 5 had had his pleasure off her. The Regent thus basslie killed, was, amongst the wysser sorte, commendit for abolishing the Roman religione in Scotland, the preservations of the King a chylde, the squall ministrations of justice without partiality, as also his munificence and liberalitey touardes learned men; bot all the Englishemen, that loued the Duck of Northfolke, as a craftie and subtile pollitician.

In Agust this zeire, Mathew, Earle of Lennox, the Regent, held a parliament at Strenelinge, wich is not recordit amongst the printed statutes of this Kings rainge, quherin (the young King being present) the said Regent made one speiche to the estaits of the realme ther present, during wich the King looked vpe, and espayed a hole in rouffe of the housse, by the laicke of some sklaitts, and after the Regant had endit his harrang, (he said,) I think ther is ane hole in this parliament. So that in effecte ere longe his Maiesties wordes wer found trew, for in this same mounthe, about the ending of the parliament, ther came to Streueling in the night, ere the nobility or tounne knew, the Earle of Huntley, the Queines Leiuetenant, Claud Hamiltone, with the Lairdes of Buccleuche and Pherneyhirste, and ere day bracke, had possessid themselues of the tounne, eraying God and the Queine; so that thesse that wer for the King and his Regent, for the multitude of enimmes, could not come to a head, bot quher euer they could see aney that belonged to the Regent, him they killed without mercey; the Regent being takin prisoner by the Laird of Buccleuche, and horsed behind him, ane wicked fellow lifte wpe his jacke, and shote him troughe the bodey with a pistoll. The Earle of Lennox, the Regent, thus killed by a packe of wicked traitors, quho depairted the tounne immediatly; and the Earle of Mar was declared Regent, and concludit the parliament. This was the holl wich the yonag King did see in the parliament, altho he meine nothing les.

About this same tyme, Pope Pius 5 had caused his bull declaratorey aganist Queine Elizabeth, (the pretendit Queine of England, as he named her,) and the heretiques adheirring to her, in wich impious parchement he absolved all her subiects from ther othe of fidelitey to her, and from all other deutes; and this infamous lybill wes fixed one the gaittes of the Bischope of Londons palace, in the night, by one Johne Feltone, quho was apprehendit, arrained, and execute neire the same place he had affixed it; wich acte he, Roman lyke, auerrid to be meritorious and just.

Heirvpone suspitions arosse in England, that some dangerous matters wer in working; and in the meane tyme, ane other rebellion, about to burst fourth in Northfolke, was discouered, anent the releiuing the Duck out of prissone; the warning was to be giuen by the blaste of a trumpett, bot this euanished.

The Duck of Northfolke was arrained at this same tyme for consenting to marrey the Queine of Scotland, Marey, without Queine Elizabeths knowledge; bot was brought backe againe from the Touer to his auen housse, wnder the keiping of St Henrey Neuilk.

Thir tymes wer full of conspiracies, for this same zeire, ther conspyred to deliuer Queine Marey out of prissone, Thomas and Eduard Stanleies, the younger sones of the Earle of Darby, by the daughter of Thomas, Duck of Northfolk, Thomas Gerard, Rolston, Hall, and diuers others in Darbyshyre; and Jo. Lesley, the Popische Bischope of Rosse, was againe committed to prissone, for that he had had secrett conference with the Earle of Southampton, one quholly addicted to the Roman religion.

Queine Elizabeths mynd fearing troubel after the publicatione of Pope Pius 5 his bull, and the insurrectione in Northfolke, shoe sends Cicill and Midelmay to the Queine of Scotland, Marey, quho then lay at Chatsworthe, in Darbyshyre, to consult and adwyse with her, by quhat meins the deuisione in Scotland might in the best maner be composed, shoe restored to her former estaite, and prowisione made for the securitey of Queine Elizabeth and the sauety of her younge sone; bot shoe, lyke a woman, deplores her auen estait, excusses the Ducke of Northfolke, and putts all her houe in the benignitey of Queine Elizabeth: ther demands to her wer drawin vpe briffie in 16 artickells, wiche, after shoe had thought one, some of them shoe wold haue granted, others shoe flatlie refussed; bot most of them seemed to the indifferent impossibilities to lay a prissoner too. Of thesse 16 artickells, Lesley, the bussie Bischope of Rosse, sent a just double of them to Pope Pius 5, to the Frenche King, and lykwayes to the Kinge of Spaine, and shew them in plaine termes that to thesse artickells the Scottes Queine behoued to condescend, wyles they speedely assisted her, both with adwysse and other necessarye ayde, and that werey shortley; wich he did most importunatlie requyste at ther handes, bot in waine, for they wer all bussied aboute other matters.

The 4 day of Appryle in this zeire, 1571, the castell of Dunbritton being keipt aganist the Kings authority by Jhone Hamilton, Archbischope of St. Andrewes, brother to the Duche of Chatteleroy, and the Lord Fleiminge, capitane therof, quho escaped by a posterne, and shipte himselue for France; bot the Archbischope, the castell being randred, was takin prissoner, brought to Streuelinge, and ther, one the 7 day of the same mounthe, hangit one a gallows: one quhom one more zelous than charitable, wrotte,

*Cresse diu felix arbor, semperq; vireto
Frondebis, vt nobis talia poma feras.*

The 14 of Majj this zeire, ther was a parliament holdin in William Cockies housse in the Chancergait, neire St. Jhons Crosse, by such as mantained the Kings authority; and ane other in the tolbuthe of Edinbrughe, by thesse that held for the deprived Queine, in wich parliaments, eache of them forfaitured ther enimmes and opposites. In the end of this tuo headit parlia: the Earle of Mortone, from Leithe, marched towardes Edinbrughe, bot in his marche thither, he was rancountred by the Hamiltons and Homes, wich wer for the Queeine, neire to the Quarrell holls; he gaue them so feirce a charge, that he forcid them, with grate losse, to turne ther backes; maney of Huntley and Hamiltons best men being killed, the Lord Home was takin prisoner. The Englishe ambassador had labourit to draw them to some attoniment befor the armies joyned, bot could not; so Mortone carried the good fortune of the day to the Kings syde, and that with ane inteire victorey, sua that the lettinng of this blood cooled the hottest distempers of this zeire.

One the 16 of Januarij, 1572, Thomas Howard, Duche of Northfolke, was arraigned at Westminster-hall, befor George Talbote, Earle of Shrewsburrey, by commissione, Lord Heighe Steuard of England for that day, and execute one Touerhill of London, the 2d day of Junij thereafter, at 8 o'clocke in the mornings.

Vpone the 14 day of Julay this zeire, was that creuell, bloody and inhumane massaaker of the innocent protestants acted at Paris, and devysd by thesse 3 furries of hell, Q. Catherine of Medices, her sone K. Charles the 9, and the trecherous Duche and Cardinall of Guize.

The 20 of Januarij this zeire, the Earle of Mortone, Regente, held a parliament at Edinbrughe.

The 28 of October, the Regent, the Earle of Mar, departed this lyffe, in quhosse place the Kings Leutenant, James, Earle of Mortone, was confirmed in the Regency of the young King and his realme.

Within 10 dayes after the Ducke of Northfolks executione; William, Lord de la Ware, Sr Ralphe Sadleir, Thomas Vilsone, doctor of the lawes, and Queine Elizabethes sollicitor, and Thomas Bromley, wer sent to Marey, Queine of Scottes, (then full of sorrow and greiffe,) to expostulat crimially with her.

Imprimis, That shoe had wsurped the tytill and armes of the realme of England; and had not relinquished the bearning of them, and wsing them, according to the trettiey of Edinbrughe.

2dly, That shoe had sought to marrey with the Ducke of Northfolke without the Queins priuitey; and to obtaine the same with the better successe, and to deliuer the Ducke out of prissone, shoe had trayed alle meines and deuisses possible by her ministers and agents.

3dly, That shoe had raissed the rebellione in the northe.

4ly, That shoe had releiued the rebells, (after they wer put to flight,) in Scotland, and the Low Countries.

5ly, That she had made suit by the Italian, Ridolphe, from forraine helpe, from the Pope, the King of Spaine, and others, to inwade England.

6ly, That shoe had conspyred, with certaine Englishemen, to take her perforce out of prissone, and to proclaime her Queine of England.

7ly, That shoe had receauid letters from the Pope, quherin he promissed to cherisse her as the hen did her chickens; and to accompt them that stooode for her the trew children of the churche.

8ly, That shoe had procured the Popes bull aganist Queine Elizabeth.

9ly, That shoe had suffered herselue to be publickly called and named Queine of England by her seruants and ministers in forraine countries.

To thesse 9 artickells shoe answered with a protestatione, that shoe was a free Queine, and subiecte to none; and then, with a countenance full of courage and magnanimitie, shoe said, that to the

First, Shoe had not vsurped the tytill and armes of England; bot that the King of France, and her husband, imposed them vpone her, being werey younge, and wnder the directione of her husband, and therfor not to be layed to her charge; nather did shoe euer wsse or weare them after her husbands deathe; nather that shoe will acclaime them als longe as Queine Elizabeth and her children liued.

Secondly, That shoe neuer imagined aney hurte or detriment to the Queine by her marriage with the Duck of Northfolke, being persuadit that it wold be for the good of the comon wealthe; and that sho wold not renunce it, because shoe had given her faithe and treuth to him, and that shoe had willed the Duck, by some meins or other, to gett away out of danger and prissone, wich shoe did out of the deutey shoe aughte to him as her husband.

Thridly, That shoe had not raised rebellione, nather was priuey to the same, but was allwayes redey to reueill aney attempts aganist the Queine, if shoe wold woschaffe to heir her.

Fourtly, That shoe neuer releued the Englishe rebells; only that in her letters shoe recommendit the Countesse of Northumberland to the Duche of Alua.

Fyftly, That shoe wssed Ridolphe (quhom shoe knew to be heighly in the Popes fauor,) in maney matters, zet did not receaue aney letters from him.

Sextly, That shoe neuer moued aney to attempt her deliuerance; zet that shoe willingly gaue care wnto them that offred ther labor therin, and for that shoe communicated wnto Rolstone and Hall a priuat character, Seuintly, That shoe had receaued letters from the Pope, weray pious and consolatorey, in wich wer no suche phrases of speiche.

Eightly, That shoe procured not the bull; and that shoe only saw the copey therof printed, and quhen shoe had read it ouer shoe brunt it.

Nyntlie, That if aney forraine regions wreat or named her otherwayes then they ought to doe, lett them (said shoe) anssuer for it.

Shoe lykwayes subioyned to thesse 9 ansuers, that sho neuer by letters requyred aide of the Pope, or King of Spaine, to invade England, bot only to be restored to her kingdome by ther meins, and that with the Queins priuitey; bot if aney doubt ore questione be made of thesse letteres, of effecting the marriage by force of armes, shoe requested, (since shoe was borne of the royall bloode of England,) that shoe might ansuer personally in the nixt parliament that was to be holdin.

This same zeire, after the leauge was concludit at Blois betuix England and France, the Duck of Montmorancey beinng sent wnto England to see the same suorne, in few wordes, in his masters name, desyred that als much fauor might be shewed to the Queine of Scotland, as was withoute danger, and that ane accord might be established in that kingdome by parliament, as also a cessatione off armes ther. It was ansuered him, that ther was more fauor showen to her then shoe deserued; and as for a cessatione of armes in that kingdome, shoe had laithly sent Dreurey, the mariachall of Beruicke, with Crocus, the Frenche ambassador ; and that shoe, by no persuasions, could bringe Grange and the gari-sons in Edinbrughe castle to peace, being induced by hope of aide from France and the Low Coun-tries, altho Huntley and the Lord of Arbrothe, (for the Ducke his father,) had bound themselues wnder ther hands to obserue the peace, and others of the Queins syde had giuen ther wordes also.

In the begining of this zeire, 1573, Q. Elizabeth, by Henrey Killigrew, drew Duck Hamiltone, and George, Earle of Huntley, quho stood for the Queine, to thesse conditions :

First, To acknouledge the religione established in Scotland.

2dly, To submitt themselues to the King, and to Mortone, his Regent, and to his successors in the gouerniment.

3dly, To renounce the authoritie of all others ; and to accompt them traitors, by authority of parliament, that attempted aney thing aganist religion, the King, or Regent.

Lastly, That the sentence of parliament aganist the Hamiltons and Gordons should be repealed.

Bot thesse conditions the Lord Home, the Bischope of Dunkelden, Lidingtone, and William Kir-caldey of Grange, and others, quho thought Q.

Marey iniuriouſly wſſed, wold vpone no tearmes admitt. They fortified the caſtle of Edinbrughe, of wich Grange was the capitane, (placed therein by the Earle of Murray quhill he was Regent,) looking for aide from France and the Duche of Alua; bot Sr William Drurey was ſent by Queine Elizabeth, with 20 pices of grate ordinance, and ſome forces, into Scotland to aide the Earle of Morton, the Regent, quho played the ſedge ſo cloſe, that for laicke of victualls the Laird of Grange was conſtrained to rander wpe the ſame to the King and his Regent, the 29 of May this zeire.

The Regent held a parliament at Edinbrughe the laſte of Appryle, this ſame zeire.

The 8d of Aguſte, William Kirkcaldey of Grange, quho had kept the caſtell of Edinbrughe aganiſte the King and hes Regent, was for the ſame hangett at the croſſe of Edinbrughe.

Johne Lesley, Biſchope of Roſſ, quho had ſerued Q. Marey weray faithfully, zet with the deſtructione of maney men, and danger of maney more, was releaſſed from priſſone at this tyme, and commandit to depairt out of England. He went to France, quher, in behalffe of Queine Marey, his miſtris, he left no wind wnsayled with the Pope, Emperour, Frenche, and Spaniſhe Kings, as alſo with the Popiſhe Princes of Germaney, to procure aide and assistance for her releiffe: all of them gaue him houpes, and faire wordes, bot performed nothing. And the Duck of Alua, in quhome he put his gratest truste, did at this tyme depairt out of the Low Countries, to the bischopes grate greiffe.

This zeire, 1574, K. Henrey the 8d, of France, and hes mother, Catherine of Medices, did all that they could, by secret practisses and deuices, to gett the young King of Scottes into France, and Mortone out of hes regencey, sending secretly Scotts out of the Frenche gaurde for this purpois wnto Scotland; wich thinge Queine Marey desyred muche, being perswadit that if her sone wer in France, out of danger, that shoe and the papists in England should be the more myldly delt withall.

This zeire, also, the Countesse and Earle of Shreusburrey, for the alledgit working a marriage betuix the Lord Charles Steuarte, Earle of Lennox, wnckell to K. James the sext, and Elizabeth Candishe, the Countesse of Shrewsburries daughter of her first marriage, without Queine Elizabeths knowledge; for wich the mothers of them both were kept vpe in close prissone; and diners suspitions dayley arryssing by resson of this marriage, made Q. Marey be the more more narrowlier lookit too; and Henry, Earle of Huntingtune to be made president of the counsaill in the northe, with new and secrett instructions touching this matter.

This zeire, 1575, deyed James Hamilton, Duck of Chatteawleroy and Earle of Arrane, quho was the grandchylde sone of K. James the 2d, by his daughter, the tutor of Marey, Queine of Scotland, and Gouvernour of the kingdome, and heire deseigned by parliament quhill shoe was in her minority. Not long after, in this same zeire, his sone, Lord Jhone Hamilton, ryding to Aberrothocke, accompanied onlie with his ordinarey traine, (for he held himselfe secured by the pacification,) was persewed by William Douglas of Lochleuin, quho did lay with a number in his way, of intencion to kill him, as he was refreshing himselfe at Coupar; bot being advertissed of the danger, he escaped to the housse of Darsey, quher he was receaued. Lochleuin belayed the housse all that night and to morrow, wntill a herauld of armes, from the counsell, sumond him to dissolue his forces; for wich insolencey, and refussing to keepe the peace, he excepting still the murther of his brother the Earle of Murray, the 1 Regent; bot he was comitted to the castle of Edinbrughe, quher he remained till surtey was giuen.

1576.

This zeire, 1576, the discontents of the country dayly increse, by the Regents seuere proceedings aganist Adam Whyteford of Myelton. This gentleman was accused as one sett on by Jhone, Lord Hamilton of Aberbrothocke, and Lord Claud, his brother, to haue killed the Regent; bot the troubles and discontents did spring from ane other fontaine, being only a nett to haue caught the Hamiltons in.

In the begining of this zeire, 1577, the Lord Glamis, Chanceler of Scotland, beinng in Streue-ling, was shote dead with a pistoll in the head; the Earle of Craufurde was bruitted at the first to be the murtherer, bot was found innocent; zet immediately thereafter, in company of the Earle of Huntley, he went ouer sea to France.

The 10 day of Marche, this zeire, James, Earle of Mortone, quho had gouerned Scotland almost fyue zeires, most wortheley, perceauing new factions to grow amongst the nobilitie, quho much repynned (according to their wounted maner) that they had no hand in the gouerniment, voluntarily of himselfe resinged the regency; altho he had beine establisht therin by acte of parliament. Vpone quhosse dimissione ther wer 16 noblemen chossen some others, to be priuey counsellors to the King, and by quhosse adwisse he should gouerne.

This same zeire, also, Don Jhone, of Austria, had made a perpetuall edicte, at Gaunt, to giue satisfaction to the estaits of the Netherlands for ther grivances, wich the Prince of Orange wterly condemnning, opportunly hard that Don Jhone intendit to marrey the Queine of Scotland ; one wich he villinly layed hold, and furthwith adwertissed Q. Elizabeth, by Famier, therby to withdraw her mynd from peace ; zet shoe, as one ignorant therof, by Daniell Rogers, shewed her gladnes of the perpetuall edicte of peace, thoughe shoe had now gottin certaine knowledge that Don Jhone, by the persuasione of the Earle of Westmureland and the Englishe fugitiues, ane fordward fauorer of the Pope and Guises, had in houe sualloued that marriage, and with all the kingdomes of Scotland and England ; and had alredey appoynted to surprisse the Ile of Man, in the Irishe sea, as a fitt place to inwade England out of Irland, and the west borders of Scotland, quherin Queine Marey had maney assurid frinds, as also in the opposite syde of England, North Walles, Cumberland, Lancasshyre and Chesshyre, quher the most of the inhabitants wer earnist papists. Thesse proiects of Don Jhone wer descouered by Antonio Perez, the Spanishe secretairey, and by the earnist solliciting of K. Philipe, by Don Jhons secretairey, Escouedo, for some heauins in Biscay to be granted him, from quence he might inwade England with a naney. Thesse heighe intentions of Don Jhons made hes brother neglects him, as one too ambitious; so that he opinly discourd himselue to all the worlde, for quhilst he seimed to attend about the perpetuall edicts of peace, he brecke out suddenly into opin warre; and by pollicey gate into his handes maney citties and castells, and wreat wnto the King of Spaine, that he thought it best to subdew and conquer the Iylands of Zealand befor the inwarde prouinces, (and belieuing that wich he houped,) endeouored to persuade him, by Escouedo, his secretarey, that England was easier to be conquered then Zealand.

In the begining of this zeire, 1578, the Earles of Mortone and Mar, and ther frindes, surprissed the castell of Streueling, to haue had the King out of it, quho was detained ther as a prissoner by the capitane, quhosse sone was killed in the surprisse of it.

Morton hauing againe engrossed bothe King and gouerniment in his auen hand, not regarding his associatts and the forme of gouerniment sett doune formerly; so that hauinge the King within the castell of Streuelinge, shote out and excludit quhom he pleased, and admitted others at his auen choysse, wherwith the other counsellors being moued, did make choysse of the Earle of Athole to be ther leader, and made a proclamatiōne, in the Kings name, that all men aboue sexteine and vnder 60 zeirs, should mett in armes, with victualls for 15 dayes. Ther mett at the day appoynted, viz. the 18 of Agust, this same zeire, maney, and with displayed baner marched to Faukirke, quher Morton with his frinds mett them redey to fight; bot Robert Bowes, the Englishe ambassador, by intrettey, and moueing honest conditions, kept them from ioyning at that tyme. They had depicted on ther ensinges, "Captiue I am, liberty I craue; our liues we shall losse, or that ze shall haue."

About this same tyme, Ladey Margaret Douglas, Countesse of Lennox, neice to King Henrey the 8, by his eldest sister, widow of Mathew, Earle of Lennox, grandmother to King James the 6, ouerliuing her 8 children, depairted to the ioyes of heauin in the 68 zeire of her age, and was solemnly interrid at Westminister; a matron of worthey piety, patience and charity.

I can not omiett how that the King did, by his auen authority, call a parliament to mett at Edinbrughe, the 25 day of Julay, this same zeire, wiche was the first he held fred of a Regent. The first acte was a declaratiōne of the freedome of said parliament; the nixt was a ratificatiōne of the acceptation of the regiment in the Kings auen persone ; as also ane acte of the electiōne and nominatione of of the Kings counsaill ; and lykwayes ane acte of exoneratione was granted to the heires of wnhquhile Johne, Earle of Mar, anent the kipinng of his maiesties persone within the castell of Striulinge. In this parliament, ther was granted by the estaits 10,000 merkes for the reparatione of the bridge ouer Tay, and a commissione concerning recognitiōne of landes within brughe.

The 10 of Maij, this zeire, the castell of Hamilton was demolished and castine doune, 1579.

One the 8 of September, this zeire, the Lord Esme Steuarte arriued in Scotland, and landit at Leith, to wisit his cousin, the Kings maiestie. He was the sone of Johne Steuarte, the brother of Mathew, Earle of Lennox, quho was the Kings grandfather. He was Lord of Obigney, a toun in Berrey, wich, longe since, Charles the 7. King of France, had giuen to the Lord Jhone Steuarte, of the familey of Lennox, Constable of France, quho did most walliantly defait the Englishe at Baugy ; since wiche tyme it hathe euer belonged to the zounger sonnes of the housse of Lennox. To re- turne then to the Lord Esme, him the King recea- ued and welcomid with all the demonstrations and expressions of kyndnes, made him of his priuey counsaill, Grate Camberlaine of Scotland, and first created him Earle and thereafter Duck of Lennox. This extraordinarey fauor of the Kings to him, made him the maine obieete of enway and vsuall discourse of the courte; quho daylie murmured that he was a fauorer of the Guissies, and of the Roman religione, and sent purposlie to Scotland, by secret and hid meins, to ouerthrow the protestant religione. The suspitione was much incressed, that he was familiar with the aduersaries of Morton; and dealt to haue Thomas Ker of Pherneyhirste recalled from exyle home, quho was of all others the most assurid frind to Queine Marey, wich Morton by all meins opposed.

This same zeire, the 8 of Junij, Monseur Lay-noy, a Frenchman, and Nicolas Throgmorton, are denayed all accesse to the King, being sent to him from his mother, and they ar forced to returne wnhard.

The 29 of October, this zeire, the King held a parliament at Edinbraghe, quherin ther was maney good lawes enacted, both for aduancement of the gospell, liberty of the churche, and prosperity of the kingdome. In this parliament was his maiesties reuocatione of the earledome of Lennox made to the Lord Charles Steuarte, his vnckell, father to the Ladey Arabella, ratified.

One the first of Januarij, this zeire, 1560, James Douglas, Earle of Morton, sometyme Regent of Scotland, was imprissoned in Edinbrughe castell. The alledgit cause was the conceilling the murther of the Kings father; and aboute the end of this same mounthe, he was remoued thence to the castell of Danbritton.

James Steuarte, of the family of Ochiltry, capitane of the guard, by the practisse of the nobility and ministers, raissed to grate fauor with the King, only to affront the Duck of Lennox; bot the King did reconceill them. Quhen this way serued not, then did they procure him als much heatred at home as could be; for, first they accuse him to Queine Elizabeth, as one sent couertly into Scotland by the Guizes to shater the stait of religione, to procure the liberty of the imprissoned Quenie, and to dissolve the amety betuix Scotland and England. He cleir- ed himselue of all thesse imputations, by his letters wrettin with his awen hand to Queine Elizabeth, and he opinly professed the protestant religion; bot of thise matters Q. Elizabeth earnestly debaitit with her priuey counsaill. The result of that debait was, that Robert Bowis, thesaurer for the garisone of Beruicke, came to Scotland, from his mistris, to charge and challenge the Duck of Lennox with thesse things, befor the King and his counsaill, and to admonishe them to be warre of thesse imminent euells that threttnd ther estait. He requyred first (being in presence of the King and his counsaill) the Duck of Lennox to be remoued, wiche was denayed; and he requyred to show his instructions, wich he denayed to doe, saue to the King ore aney tuo more, and that priuatley: so he returned one hard.

To excuse the not giuing audience to the Englishe ambassador, Alexander Home was sent to Queine Elizabeth, quho was denayed accesse to her; only he was put ouer to the Lord Burleighe, quho with a werrey laconicke and patheticke speiche showed him, that the Queine did not thinke it good to admitt him to her speiche or presence, not that shoe did neglecte him, quhom shoe had trayed to be sound in religione, and a man cairfull for the good of his prince and countrey, and tranquillitey of bothe the realmes; bot out of a just greiffe that her maiestie, and the crydit of her ambassador, quho was so contemptuosly wssed, quho had kept himselfe within the compasse and bounds of his ambassade, and had beine commandit to show his commissione (wich was a thing neuer hard offe). Bot he caste all the faulte on the new counsellers, and excussed the King, quho wanted experience, through his young zeires, and wished that he wold giue care wnto the quholosome and profitable aduices of Queine Elizabeth, quho did beare a trew motherly mynd wnto him; and not to make lesse accompte of her then he did of his Frenche cousin, and a subiecte to the Frenche Kinge, matched with a Frenche woman, and a papist in religion, and quho perhapes doeth seike, (said he,) the Hamiltons being at this tyme banishte, to be deseingd 2d presone to the King; bot lett your King know (said he) that ther is no affection more vehement then ambitione, and lett the Scottes remember quhat broyles the Frenchemen had made in Scotland, if the Queine by her prudence and power had not prewented them.

So Home was sent back without audience; and all these thinges ware done a purpois to put the King in feare offe, and to make him beleieve that the Duck of Lennox had undertakin dangerous deuices and plotts aganiste him and his realme.

Queine Elizabeth, in the begining of Januarij, this zeire, 1581, sent her postmaster general, Sr Thomas Randall, to Scotland, with instructions to conserue the religione and amitey with England; and to labor all he could that no wiolence should be offred to Morton; to remoue Lennox out of Scotland, and to comforte the noblemen of the Englishe faction. He made earnest and diligent intretty for Morton, allēdging his meritts towards the Kinge, the honor of Queine Elizabeth, (if shoe so weill deserving should have a repulsse,) and the enuay of his accussers.

The King ansсурd him modestlie, that he could not, out of his princelie deuntie, bot bring to trayell a man impeached of tressone; and he did by experience acknouledge the Queins good will, and that he wold not doe anney thing that might justlie displease her by aney meines.

Zet notwithstanding of the Kinges smouthe answer to the Englishe ambassador, Randolphe, wpone the 9 of Maij, this same zeire, James, Earle of Morton, was brought out of Dunbartan castle to Edinbrughe, and being accussid for conceilling the Kinges murther, by an assisse of his peeirs, he was found guiltey, and receaued sentenee to losse his head at Edinbrughe crosse; wich wes execut the 2d day of Junij, this same zeire.

The 23 day of October, this same zeire, the King calld a parliament, wich held at Edinbrughe; quherin, amongst maney statutes for the weill of church and stait herin enacted, the contrauersey betuix the townes of Perth and Dundie, anent the place of precedencey in parliament was remitted by the estaits to the decissione of the royall broughes. This parliament lykwayes granted a commissione for composing all debaittable matters betuix the Gordons and Forbesses; as also, the parliament granted a preuillidge of silk making to Robert Dickson.

The 23 of Aguste this zeire, 1582, the Kings maiestie, being in the castell of Ruthuen, was kept ther, contrair his will, by William, Lord Ruthuen, and certaine other noblemen, his complices, and wes constraind, by a warrand wnder his hand, after they had conducted him thence to Streuelinge, to charge the Duke of Lennox, then at Edinbrughe, to depairt therfra, ather to the castell of Dalkeith or of Aberbroth, within 24 houres; and within 20 dayes to passe fourth of Scotland to France, wnder the paine of tressone. On this charge, the Duke depairted to Glasgow, from thence to Dumbartane, and then throughe England to France; qaher it was thought he had gottin poyson, by the lingring working of it, wich procurid his death in the mounth of Maij in the following zeire, 1583. After he came to France, nather the King of France, nor zet the nobility ther, nay not hes auen Ladey, gaue him any respecte, in that he had ioyned himselue to the protestant religion in Scotland, and had communicat with them.

Thesse that had detained the King at Ruthuen, and made him exyle the Duck of Lennox, of the nobility war thesse especially:

Lord Newbotle; withe the quholl gentrey of Mersse and Louthean. Thesse noblemen that had takin the King and detained him at Ruthuen and Stirling, at the same tyme tooke Capitane James Steuart, the Earle of Arrane, (as he wold haue himselfe called,) and committed him prissoner to the castle of Dupleine, 1583.

This zeire, 1583, Queine Elizabeth sent her principall secretairey, Sr Francis Walshinghame, ambassador to K. James the 6, quho was then at St. Andrews; he came to Edinbrughe weill attendit by diuersse Englishe noblemen. He departed Edinbrughe, the 15 of September, to Perth, quher he hade audience of the King, and remained some 8 dayes ther, and then tooke his leue of his Maiestie to returne home for England. That wich came to light of this ambassie, was anent thesse artikells proposed by the Englishe Queine and counsaill, to be ratified befor Queine Marey could be sett at liberty; bot after Walshinghame had priuily expostulat the bussines with the King, thesse propositions did quyte euanishe, and her enlargement turned to smoke.

This zeire, came Lodouick Steuarte, eldest sone to Amatus, Duck of Lennox, from France, and landit at Leithe, the 13 day of Nouember, and im-mediatly after his home cominge, Archbald, Earle of Angus, was confyned a prissoner to Inuernesse.

In the begining of the spring this zeire, 1584, some of thesse that had fled wnto Irland, returned vpon a pacte betuix them and the Earle of Gourey, quho had a new againe conspyred to take the King; bot the King heiring therof, sent Colonell Stenarte to apprehend the Earle of Gonrey, quho lay at the heauin of Dundie, as if he had beine going out of the land; quho, after he had defendit himselne ane houre or tuo in his housse, he was takin and led to prisone; and on the 4 day of Maij, this same zeire, wes arrainid at Streuelinge befor his peecirs on thesse poynts:

1. That he intendit and begane a new conspira-cey aganist the King, quhom he also had keipt prissoner in his housse befor tyme.

2. That he conferrid by night with the seruants of Angus, to seasse vpon the toouns of Perth and Streuelinge.

4. That anent the euent of his conspira-cey and interprysses, he had consulted with one Maclina, a witche.

He being found guiltey by his peecires, was sentenced to losse his head, wich sentence was put in executione in the eiuning, a little benethe the castell wall of Streueling. His seruants did sow his head to the bodey, and incontinely burried the same.

The 8 of Aguste, this zeire, was Capitane James Steuarte, by the King, contrarey the oppinion of most of the Lords of his priuey counsaill, made capitane of Edinbraghe castell.

About this same tyme, the conspiracies of Thomas, Lord Pagett, Francis Throgmorton, and Charles Arrundaill, wer detected; tuo of them fled to France, and immediatly thereafter Henry, Earle of Northumberland, and Philipe, Earle of Arrundaill, wer commandit to keipe ther housses. Ther charge was communicatioun with the Scotts Queine, Marey, by letters, how to invade England, by strangers, to liberat her, alter religione, and kill Q. Elizabeth.

At this same tyme, the hotte headit Spanishe ambassador, Bernardino de Mendosa, was commandit to depairt England, for violating the rights of ane ambassador, and partaking too deiply in thesse conspiracies aganist the Queine. He departed to France, complaining that violence had beine offred to him in England, aganist the preuillidge of ambassadors, and law of nations.

Claude Hamiltone, Lord Arbrothe, quho had liued an exyle in England about 13 zeires, and hade returned home in Nouember this laste zeire, by the practisses of James Steuarte, (called the Earle of Arrane) was chargit by ane herauld to depairt the kingdome, wnder the paine of tressone, this zeire, 1585 ; and one the 3d day of Maij, he shipt at Dumbartane for France.

In the mounth of Junij, this zeire, ther came to the Kings maiestie, beinng then at Edinbrughe, ane ambassador from Denmarke, attendit by diuersse noblemen of that countrey ; his ambassie tendit to the negotiatting a marriage betuixe K. James and Anna, daughter to the Danishe King ; wich, if it wer refussed, then was he instructed to demand the lles of Orknay and Zetland, conforme to a reuer-sione granted to the Kinges of Denmark by K. James the 3d.

About this same tyme, the plauge of pestilence raged extremily in Scotland, quherof maney thousands of people deyed; no shyre, citey, toune or willage being free of it.

The 27 of Julay, this zeire, Sr Francis Russell, sone to the Earle of Bedford, was killed one the border of Scotland, by the Laird of Pherniehirst, Warden of the Scotts Marches.

This same zeire, also, the banisht Lordes returnd from England, and with them Claud Hamilton, Lord of Arbrothe, quho had lined ane exyle now almost 14 zeires. Thir Lordes, with the assistance of ther frindes heir, wich wer,

Lord Home,

Lord Zester,

they leuied ane armye of 5000 men, and one a sudaïne marched to Streueling, and surprysed bothe the toune and castle quherin the King was, and detained him prisoner. Ther pretext was, to put from the King the proud and ambitious Earle of Arrane, James Stewarte, quho by his extraordinary crydit and power with the King, had caussid banishe and forfaiture thesse lordes, barrons and gentlemen. Arrane was present with the King quhen the Lordes tooke it; bot he narrowly escapt by sea to France. He no souner gone, bot incontinent thereafter, the castelle of Edinbrughe, quherof he was capitane, committed to the custodey of the Laird of Coldingknowes, was randred. The Lordes immediatly conwayed the King to the toun of Linlithgow, quher they remained untill the Kinge call'd a parliament; quherin the haill banisht Lordes, with ther frindes and followers, had the acte of ther forfaultry repealed, and themselues againe restored to ther honors, dignities and reuenews. This was done at the humble suit of almost the quholl estaites of the realme, a purposse to separat the King from his ambitious and leud minion, the Earle of Arran, and his ladey, a lascivious viccked woman, and one blunderd of witchcrafts, and had made the King to neglecte and vilipend his nobility; for he so quholly possessed the King, that nothing was done in courts bot by him and his ladey; wich did heighly exasperat the nobilitye, to see the King possesit by tuo such musroomes, that had arrissen bot zesterday almost from the earthe, quho sought only ther auen preferment, and that with the ruine of the comonwealthe.

Q. Elizabeth, this zeire, held a parliament at Westminster, quherin the haill members of parliament tyed themselues in a band and othe of associatione, to manteine with ther liues and fortunes ther Queine, and the reformid protestant religione.

long table, to a banquet prepared for them by the citey; at wiche ther was soleme expressions of ioy and reconciliatione, with mutuall embraces of one ane other; and his matie, to crowne that dayes worke, dranke to them all peace and happines. This reconciliatione of the nobility and diuersse of the gentry, was the gratest worke, and happiest game that the King had played in all his rainge heithertills.

The King calls a parliament this zeire, 1587, to begin at Edinbrughe, the 29 day of Julij, in wiche was a quiholl volume of actes and lawes enacted for gouernment of church and stait, forby thesse in fauors of particular persons. The aduersaries of the trew protestant religion wer ordainid to be trayed and punished; and the sellers and wenters of popishe bookes should be ordered according to former lawes; and all molesters, troublers of kirke and kirke men should be seuerly punished.

In this parliament was the temporalities of all church benefices annexed to the crowne, with some reservations in favours of particular persons; and the Kings generall revocation ratified and made a law; and the Lords of the Sessione made judges to the interpretations of the law of obliuione.

This parliament ordained all cheiffs of clans both in the Borders, Heighlands and Iles, to find sufficient catione to the King and his pryncy counsaill, befor the first of October in this same zeire, for ther deportment and ciuill carriage, and peace of the countrey; and that all heighlanders and borderers returne to place quher they wer borne; and that it shall not be lesun in tymes coming to ane Scotts borderer to marrey with ane wther in England.

The pryme commissiones that issewed from this parliament wer, first, a commissione for ane taxatione anent the Kings marriage; a commissione anent cunzie; and ane commissione anent the establishing of ane vniversall measure and waight throughe the hail kingdome; and lastly, a commissione anent the priority of places and wotting in parliament.

The 19 of Junij, this zeire, 1589, George, Earle Marishall, was sent ambassador to Denmarke, for the Kings marriage. He was weil accompanid in his ambassie, and by the Kings procuratione, the bussines was endit in the mounth of Julay thereafter; and in September following, the ambassador, with the Queine and all her traine, shipt in Denmark for Scotland, bot by contrarey winds wer forced to land in Ypsto sound, in Norway, quher the frost did constraine them to vinter. Bot the King, impetient of his Queins stay, tookę shipe at Leithe, the 28 day of November, this same zeire, and sauely arrin'd in Norway, quher the Queine was; quho both shortly after ther meitting, went backe to Denmarke, and ther was the marriage solemnly consumat, with grate feasting and triumphe; quher he stayed wntill the mounth of Maij therafter. the Danes that had accompanid the Queine theither, take ther liue of ther maiesties, (quho bestoued maney jewells and riche presents one them, according to ther senerall qualities,) and tooke shiping for Denmarke.

This zeire, 1501, ther wer many apprehendit for witchcrafte, and put to diuers sortes of trialls; and therafter sentenced to be brunt in diuersse pairts of the kingdome.

The 22. of Junij, this same zeire, Francis, Earle of Bothuell, quho had beine prissoner in Edinbrugh castell some 20 dayes, escaped from thence. The reasons of his imprisonment wer, that he had consulted with witches, especially with one, a notorious dinell, called Richard Grhame, to destroy the King and Queine. Immediately after his escape, he was declared rebell, and all his maiesties subiects, wnder the paine of tressone, inhibit to receane him, or giue him aney mantinence.

The 7 of Februarij this zeire, 1592, the Earle of Murray was cruelly murdered by the Earle of Huntley, at his house in Dumbristell, in Fyffesbyre, and with him Dumbar, Shriffe of Murray; it ginen out and publickly talked that the Earle of Huntley was only the instrument of perpetrating this facte, to satisfie the Kinges jelosie of Murray, quhom the Queine, more rashlie then wyslie, some few dayes before had commendit in the KINGS heiringe, with too maney epithetts of a proper and gallant man.
The reasons of thesse surmisses proceidit from a proclamatioun of the KINGS, the 18 of Marche following, inhibitting the younge Earle of Murray to persew the Earle of Huntley for his fathers slaughter, in respecte he being wardit in the castell of Blacknesse for the same murder, was willing to abyde his try-ell; answering that he had done nothing bot by the Kings maties commissione; and so was neither airt nor pairt of the murder.

A parl: haldia at Edinbrughe, the 12 day of Julay, this zeire, not mentioned amongst the printed statutes of this King, quherin Francis, Earle of Bothwell, with his quhell followers, wer forfaited.

On the 17 of the mounthe of Julay, the forfaited Earle of Bothwell intendit to haue surprissed the Kinge at Falkland; bot that deseuing failled him; for the palace wes walliantlie kept aganist him, till the neighbouring tounes coming to the Kings reskew, the traitor betooke himselue to flight; and 18 of his men being takin neire to Cadermare, wer brought to Edinbrughe and hanged. The King, some dayes thereafter, did publickly, in ane eloquent speiche to the people, in the grate churche of Edinbrughe, show the madnes of the traitor Bothuell in this Read of Falkland.

The various accidents of stait, this zeire, wer both maney, and some of them memorable; the most remarkable wer, that the Countesse of Bothwell was receauit to the Kings fauor, the 17 of Nouember; and on the 28 of this same mounthe, ther was emitted a strait proclamatione, inhibiting all his Maiesties subiects to receaue, harbour, intertaine or wase the society of the Countesse of Bothuell, wnder the paine of death.

About this tyme, also, Francis, Earle of Erole,

About the end of December, this zeire, Mr George Ker was apprehendit at Calder, and brought to Edinbrughe, and ther comitted to close prissone, for carying letters from the Popishe Lordes in Scot-land to the Pope, K. of Spaine, and Prince of Par-ma, then Gouvernour of the Netherlands.

At this tyme, ther was a couenant, or mutuall band for defence of the reformed protestant religione, aganist Rome and all its adherents, ordannd by the King and his priuey counsaill to be subscribed by all his subiects, 3d of Januarij.

The 8 of Februarij, this zeire, the Earles of Huntley and Erole, both popishly affected, being citted to compeire befor the King and his counsaill, and not giuing obedience, war denounced rebellis.

The 15 of Februarij, the Earle of Angus, quho had remained in Edinbrughe castle a close prisoner since he was attached one Mr George Kers depositions, escaped from thence; wich made David Grhame of Fintry faire the worsse, quho was also a prisoner for the selue same facts, to losse his head at Edinbrughe crosse, the 17 day of this same mounthe.

This zeire, in Marche, his maiestie made a progresse to the north, with some companies of soul-diours, and did demolishe the castells of Slaines, Strathbolgie, Neuton, Burnhousse and Craige, belonging to the chieffe recusants of that countrey, viz. Huntley, Erole, Sr Walter Lindesay and Sr Johne Ogiluey.

The 31 of Julay, this zeire, the King holds a parliament at Edinbrughe, quherin the forfaitre of Francis Steuarte, Earle of Bothuell, was againe ratified and confirmed by the 3 estaits, quho bot laithly, in the begining of this same weyre mounth, had beine by appeirance bot newly reconceilld to the Kings fauor, (for he had forced his anen peace) by taking the King at Holyradhousse palace; wick by the ceinons was called the second Road of the Abbey. In this parliament, also, the forfaitre of Johne Lindesay of Wauchope was repealed, and he againe restored. The Queine had the 3d of the abbey of Dumfermling ratified to her, and the Ducke of Lennox the superiorities of the bischopericks of St. Andrews and Glasgow.

The 11 of October, this zeire, the Popishe Lordes wer reconceilled to the Kings fauor; and the acte of abolitioun made in ther fauors proclaimed at Edinbrughe crosse by a pursuwant, 27 of Nouember.

This zeire endit with the Lord Maxswolls slaughter by the Laird of Jhonston, the 6 of this mounth of December; and the Laird of Cesfurdes combat with the traitor Bothuell, quho fought tuo aganist 2, the 11 day of this same mounthe.

It is to be remembred hou muche inconstancie appeird in gouernment of the stait this zeire, quhen as the 4 penney plakkes were be oppin proclama-tioun wer ordained to haue coursse, and eft the morrow they wer altogider discharged; wich shew a werey feckell tyme.

This zeire is most obseruable, in respecte the King was tossed like a times ball betnix the pre-crisse ministers and the treacherous papists, in respecte quhen as he had cast done and demolisht some of ther houses, and committed other some of them to prisone, and exyled others; and in effecte doune all that lay in him to doe; zet Mr Robert Bruce, a minister, told him to his face, out of the pulpit, "that God wold raise more Bothuells aganist him nor one;" that was, more enimies then Bothuell, giue he did not reuenge Gods quarrell aganist the papists, befor his awen particular; and repented him not of his awen trespases and iniquities.

In Appryle, this zeire, Bothuell comes to Leith with 500 horsses, and the King raises the toune of Edinbraghe, to apprehend him; bot he fleies by the way of Dalkeith.

Diuers wer hangit this zeire, for resaitting and entertaining of him; as William Heggie, 29 of Appryle; Allane Orme, brother to the Laird of Mugdum, the 17 of September; Jhone Gibsone and James Cochran, the 24 of this same mounth; lykwayes as also the Capitane of Blacknesse, the 15 of October, for the same cause.

In a parliament haldin at Edinbrughe, the 8 of Junij, this zeire, quherin maney lawes wer enacted aganist heirers of messe, papists, and aganist erections after the acte of annexatione.

In this same parliament, the Earles of Huntley, Erole and Angus, with the Lairdes of Mack-len, Mack-oneill and Achindoune, wer all forfaited, for ther tressonable practisses to bring in the Spaniard, to betray the countrey to strangers, and to alter religion established by the lawes of the land.

One the 30 day of Agüst, this zeire, the prince was christned in the chapall royall of Streueling, by the Bischope of Aberdeine, and called Henrey. His godfathers wer the Danishe King, the Duck of Meckelbrughe, and the Estaits of the Netherlands, by ther commissione sent by ther ambassadors. Queine Elizabeth of England was his godmother, by her ambassador, the Earle of Sussex.

Grate commotions did begin to threttin the publicke peace of this kingdome, in October this zaire, by the forfaited Earles of Huntley and Erole, quho, with ther adherents and friendes, raisse in armes aganist the Kings leiuetenant, Archbald, Earle of Argyle, and faught a batall in the north neir Strathbolgie, at a place called the Ledderfootte, wich by some was called Belrinnesse, by others Glenliuett; in wich Sr Patrick Gordon of Achindoune, with diuers others of Huntlies friends wer killed; the Earle of Erole hurte. Argyles armye wes totally routted, and maney of his iles-men killed. Amongst the constancies of the courte this zeire, one was remarkeable, that at Glasgow, in September, the King receanid the Countesse of Bothuell to his fauer the 22 day at night; and one the 3d of December againe proscribed and exyled her, vnder the paines of death: zet gaue her a letter of protection vnder his auen hand, within 6 dayes thereafter.

The first grate pryces that euer victuall gaue in Scotland, in memorye of aney then liuing, was this zeire, and then at the tyme quhen the corns should haue beine chepest, in the moniths of October, Nouember, and December. Whyte was sold, and malte, at 20 lib. ootte meall 10 lib. and peasse meall at 7 lib.

I find not aney thing memorable this zeire, 1596, save only that the prices of cornes continued still deir; and altho that aboue 60 shipes laden with cornes and grains of all sortes came into the realme this zeire, zet the ootte meall was sold at 10 lib. 13 sh. 9 d. the boll, and peasse meall at 8 lib. 16 sh., and the Galloway boll was 20 lib. Bet I find Clement Cur and Robert Lumsdaine, hes sons in law, netted for buying the Earle of Marches victuall of all sortes for 38 sh. 4 d. the boll, in the beginning of the zeire, and thereafter to haue solde it for the pryces aforsaid. The ministers throughe all the shyre pronuncid the cursee of God aganist them, as the grinders of the faces of the poore; wich cursee too manifestly lighted on them befor ther deathes.

In the mounthe of Januarij, this same zeire, a proclamatione was published at Edinbrughe crosse, by a herauld, anent the constitutione of the Octavianes, for reuling the Kings rents and exchequer; they wer:

The 17 day of December, this zeire, a grate tumult was raissed in Edinbrughe, by the factious ministers and comons, aganist the Octauians. Some poore courtiers, for effectuatting ther auen ends, sturs vpe the ministers, quhom they had informed that the Octauians had counselled the King to countenance the Popische Lordes, and such as wer Romishly disposed; then, without more, was the Blue Blankit aduanced, and a factious citizen, named Eduard Jhonston, becomes leader to the rable multitude, and craves, the suord of God and Gedeon, aganist the courteours, enimes to his treuth. This tumult in Edinbrughe moued the King to remoue thence all the seatts of justice, and inhibit the exercise therof in that toun, by his proclamatione, the 18 of this same mounth.
